Bitter Clash Marks Election

City Clerk, Solicitor Involved in Debate With Candidate and Supporters

Temper flared and hot words were tossed back and forth at the City Market this morning as the battle of the scrutineers blazed into action in Victoria's civic election. Here city solicitor Arthur Patton emphasizes

As the scrutineers' battle continued, no verbal punches were spared. Here lawyer Bate listened while Mr. Hunter literally points up his side of the argument, while Mr. Patton waits for his turn to get back into the fray once more.

LEGAL ACTION THREATENED BY SMITH

Blocked in Plan For Scrutineers

A threat to upset the civic election with court action was made today by the solicitor of mayoralty candidate J. Donald Smith.

In one of the most bitter actions in Victoria election history, H. K. (Pat) Bate indicated legal steps might be taken to have the election declared invalid.

It resulted from a ruling of Frank Hunter, returning officer, that 21 personal scrutineers of Mr. Smith would not be allowed to stand at the individual polling booths in the Cormorant Street Public Market polling station.

At one point, Mr. Smith and his lawyer, Mr. Bate, sought to have Mr. Hunter arrested, as well as city solicitor Arthur Patton, who supported him in his ruling against the scrutineers.

They went to city prosecutor Alan Bigelow with the avowed intention of swearing out warrants against Mr. Hunter and Mr. Patton. But they left the prosecutor's office saying they had decided on a different course of action.

ANGRY PASSAGE

Mr. Bate's threats were made in two separate arguments with Mr. Hunter and Mr. Patton staged in the middle of the polling station. Mr. Bate shouted angry words passed between him and Mr. Patton.

Toward noon, however, things had quieted down, and Mr. Smith said he didn't feel like commenting on possible legal action.

He did say, however: "We're prepared to issue a writ of mandamus but we can't do it because there's no Supreme Court judge here."

He said the writ would simply require the returning officer to permit his scrutineers in the polling station.

Mr. Smith had intended placing scrutineers at each of the 21 booths in the polling station where voters reported for their ballots. He apparently was informed Wednesday night he would not be allowed to use them, although he claimed he had served notice on election officials two months ago of his intention to have scrutineers.

RULING PROTESTED

Mr. Smith and Mr. Bate arrived at the polling station 15 minutes before opening time to protest the ruling and to seek to have it set aside.

On that occasion, they conducted their argument with City Solicitor Arthur Patton.

Mr. Patton said the Elections Act did not provide for scrutineers—that Mr. Smith could only have one agent on hand at the polling station and no more.

Mr. Bate said that was not the way he interpreted the act.

The two lawyers quoted various sections of the act to one another. Finally, Mr. Bate turned to Mr. Smith and said: "The hell with it, we'll go out and swear out a warrant for his arrest as well as Frank Hunter."

Mr. Smith continued the argument with Mr. Patton: "The precedent was set. Herbert Anscomb had scrutineers at elections when he was mayor" (1929-30-31).

PATTON NOT IMPRESSED

"I don't give a damn about Herb Anscomb," Mr. Patton told him.

Mr. Bate got back into the argument, demanding: "How many DRO's (deputy returning officers) are there? How many? How many?"

Mr. Smith said: "One man can't be at 21 places at one time. It's ridiculous."

Mr. Hunter entered the argument then, explaining: "My duty is to do the best thing in the public interest. Apart from anything else, it's physically impossible to provide accommodation for 420 people in the polling station to act as scrutineers. If you had it, all of the other candidates should have it, too."

Mr. Bate said: "That's your difficulty, not ours."

Mr. Smith said: "The market building is totally inadequate."

WORD OF WARNING

As Mr. Smith and Mr. Bate turned to go, Mr. Patton cautioned the candidate: "You watch your step or you'll be disqualified—sure as hell."

The candidate and his solicitor went from the polling station to contact B. C. Bracewell, deputy minister of municipal

U.S. Hopeful Soviet To Accept Atom Plan

Vishinsky's Blast Before UN and Moscow
Radio Action Not Believed Final Decision

WASHINGTON (UP)—The White House said today this government does not believe that the first Russian reaction to President Eisenhower's atomic proposal Tuesday "necessarily represents the considered decision of the Soviet government."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The Russians curtly rejected President Eisenhower's "Christmas present" offer of peaceful development of the atom today, but amazed and concerned United Nations diplomats hoped it did not represent the Kremlin's final stand.

Vishinsky, in a speech made shortly before the General Assembly adjourned its eighth annual session, cautiously avoided identifying the Eisenhower plan.

"Without the unconditional prohibition of the atomic weapon and strict international control, there can be no question of the peacetime use of atomic energy," Vishinsky said.

Moscow radio echoed him in even stronger vein, charging that Mr. Eisenhower "had threatened atomic war."

Their concerted action left no doubt that both spoke on orders—directly from the Kremlin.

Moscow radio's attack on the Eisenhower plan was delivered by the Soviet's Boris Lontiev. He said: "Eisenhower threatened atomic war and made a eulogy of this policy of force. It is clear that the United States does not want to bring about a relaxation of strained international relations."

BOWL OF BARLEY GRUEL

Religious Leaders Back Drive

City religious leaders have thrown their weight behind the Times drive, conducted on behalf of the Unitarian Service Committee, to help Korea's war orphans.

Here are a few random comments: Senior Major C. J. Milley, Salvation Army—"We are all for the people not getting the breaks in life. The need for help to Korea's war waifs is very grave. I certainly endorse this wonderful movement, and subscribe personally."

Rev. G. R. Easter, First Baptist—"We are 100 per cent behind the campaign. I contribute myself. The issue is bigger than any denominational outlook. We are mentioning the drive this week in our church members' bulletin."

Dr. Lewis McLean, St. Andrew's Presbyterian—"A donation is the very best thing that can be done to express the real spirit of Christmas."

The total in the fund today is $1,595.95, an increase since Wednesday of $708. To achieve this, 148 people sent or brought in donations to the Times' Broad Street office or the office at 2631 Douglas Street.

In the fourth day of the two-week gesture on behalf of 50,000 hungry kiddies wandering without parents in cold Korea, a lot of light has been thrown on just how contributors think on the subject. The thoughts are warming ones. Some follow: "The scheme might spread to other daily papers across Canada... it is the poorest who best

Screaming Girls Riot in B.C. Industrial School

VANCOUVER (UP)—Two teenage girls broke out of the detention section of the Girls' Industrial School early today after a three-hour riot at the institution a few hours earlier. Police recaptured one of the girls shortly before dawn.

The riot occurred in the "incurable" section of the detention home with some 10 girls screaming, cursing and smashing their quarters. Officials called out extra squads of police.

RED WORKERS HAVE OWN MISERIES

TOKYO (UP)—Fifty-five employees of the Communist newspaper Red Flag—all card-carrying Reds—embarrassed their bosses today by threatening to strike to support their demands for a $33 year-end bonus.

"We can't continue our fight for Communism on empty stomachs," a spokesman said.

City police took down the names of drivers of cars who drove up to the city polling station this morning with "Vote for Smith" signs on their bumpers.

This went on as mayoralty candidate J. Donald Smith and his solicitor, H. K. Bate, were inside arguing with Returning Officer Frank Hunter with regard to his decision that no scrutineers would be allowed.

The Elections Act prohibits campaign signs within close proximity of an election place.

When Mr. Smith and Mr. Bate came out of the market building, it was Mr. Bate who realized the seriousness of the situation.

"Get those bumper cards off the cars," he shouted to the candidate. "Never mind the other thing; this is far more serious. They could cook your goose."

Supporters of Mr. Smith were detailed to watch for cars and remove any election signs.

One man ripped up one placard and shoved it in his pocket. Police confiscated others.

Ald. Percy Scourrah, also a mayoralty candidate, watched these proceedings from a street corner. So did Police Chief John Blackstock.

B. C. Bracewell, deputy minister of municipal affairs, acknowledged having talked over the telephone to H. K. Bate, solicitor for Donald Smith, in connection with the no-scrutineer ruling in the election.

"I told them what my opinion was, but explained that every returning officer was likely to have his own view. I told him to be reasonable," Mr. Bracewell said.

He declined to have his opinion made public.

First mayoralty candidate to vote in today's civic election was Ald. Percy Scourrah. He was waiting outside when the polls opened.

Ald. Waldo Skillings also voted early. Mayor Harrison and Mrs. Harrison voted at about 10 a.m.

The scrutineers issue was brought to a head when Mr. Smith led five of his workers from campaign headquarters to polling place. (Photos by Halkett.)

HEAVIEST VOTE IN HISTORY?

Heavy voting this morning indicated the turnout for today's civic election will be the biggest in many years, if not for all time.

The rush at the polls was such that returning officer Frank Hunter and his staff were too busy to get the usual check on the number of voters who had balloted up until noon.

One election official stated: "It's the busiest I've seen it in 10 years."

Sex Maniac Blamed for Grabbing Girl

TORONTO (UP)—An exhaustive check of every one of pretty Marion McDowell's dozens of boy friends convinced police today that she was kidnapped from a lover's lane by a sexual maniac who had never seen her before.

Scarborough officers who had interviewed 200 friends and acquaintances of the missing girl said they were satisfied the motive for her Sunday night kidnapping was not jealousy.

They turned to poring over records of persons just out of mental hospitals whose case histories showed such offenses and checked men recently released after prison terms for sex crimes.

The 17-year-old typist was kidnapped Sunday night from the car of her new boy friend, James Wilson, 19, on their fourth date.

Scarborough police and Ross McDowell, the girl's distraught father, each offered $1,000 reward for information that would bring her home—dead or alive.

Friends of the father, a superintendent in a lingerie plant, said the offer represented a tremendous personal sacrifice.

'THIS IS NO PEACE CANDIDATE'

Communists Spoil Award Of Prize to Marshall

By HALVARD ROSSELAND
OSLO (CP)—Communist demonstrators, shouting "this is no peace candidate," today interrupted the formal ceremonies awarding the 1953 Nobel peace prize to Gen. George C. Marshall.

A stunned audience at the Oslo University festival watched as the demonstrators showered anti-Marshall leaflets upon them during the presentation.

The audience had come to witness the award to Marshall in recognition of the $17,000,000,000 American postwar European aid plan which bore his name.

A group of about 20 young Communists, who sneaked into the gallery despite a check at the entrance, shouted in unison: "This is no peace candidate. Marshall go home." The leaflets were headed with the words "We protest!"

Police rushed to the galleries and quickly overpowered the demonstrators, aided by angered spectators.

The interruption came as

DURING ABSENCE OF PARENTS

'Grandmummy and Aunt Margot' Keep Royal Children Happy

LONDON (CP)—Newspaper and magazine correspondents writing of a "new" Princess Margaret could find two members of the Royal Family who disagree with that definition. To Prince Charles and Princess Anne, "Aunt Margot" is the same exciting nursery playmate she always has been.

During the Queen's absence from Britain, the 23-year-old princess and Queen Mother Elizabeth are constant visitors to the royal nursery, and the children can be frequently found at Clarence House, home of the royal mother and daughter team.

It's not the first time "grandmummy" and Aunt Margot have filled the roles of foster parents to the Queen's children. The longest spell came during the royal tour of Canada in 1951 and Princess Margaret thoroughly enjoyed it.

EXCITED TRIO

Intensely fond of children, Britain's most eligible bachelor girl delights in romping the Buckingham Palace corridors with Princess Anne and Charles, laughing as they squeal delightedly trying to avoid capture. There are also such games as hide-and-seek and hide-the-thimble. The sophisticated, fashion-conscious princess can be depended on to romp with a boyish abandon that comes up even to Prince Charles' demands.

A favorite pastime is enticing Aunt Margot, with her flair for mimicry, to simulate good and bad fairies and other toyland folk. Margaret can give a performance worthy of any pantomime stage. Prince Charles, who loves catchy tunes and has his own gramophone, can be relied on to applaud with gusto any impromptu performance.

The Queen and Duke have insisted that the children's Christmas should be "the same as always" and that means plenty of fun and games organized by the princess.

Charles and Anne will have presents from Britain and other parts of the world, chosen and packed by the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh. And some time on Christmas Day a telephone call will come through to Sandringham from New Zealand. It is the Queen's wish she and her husband should say a personal "merry Christmas" to their children, the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret. Charles and Anne were trained early to use the telephone.

affairs, and Erle Pepler, deputy attorney general. They went then to see the city prosecutor and from there to Mr. Smith's headquarters, where they assembled five of the would-be scrutineers and marched them to the market building.

Mr. Bate made it quite clear he wanted to present some of the scrutineers in person and have them rejected by the DRO so that he could cite this as he did take action through the courts.

When they arrived, Mr. Bate and Mr. Smith got into another argument with Mr. Hunter and Mr. Patton.

INTIMIDATION CHARGE
On this occasion, Mr. Patton accused the two of trying to intimidate Mr. Hunter.

"You're trying to do the very thing the act says you mustn't do," Mr. Patton said. "You're trying to intimidate this man."

Mr. Bate snapped at Mr. Patton: "You've got no status."

Mr. Patton said: "I have got status—a damn sight more status than you."

Mr. Smith and Mr. Bate left soon afterward.

Mr. Bate said: "He's the returning officer. We can't argue with him here and now. The only way we can argue with him is through the courts."

Asked if that was what he was going to do, he explained: "I'm merely the solicitor."

NO STATEMENT
Mr. Smith, asked about possible legal action, said: "I can't make any statement on that at present."

Mr. Bate explained: "We want to see the election is conducted properly in accordance with the act."

"The mere fact Frank Hunter, as a matter of convenience to the election staff and as a means of saving money, has only opened one polling station, and placed therein all 21 booths, is no reason to deny us the right we feel we have in the Elections Act to personally watch and scrutinize every vote cast."

Mr. Patton said: "It says 'agents' because its referring to the collection of agents—one for each candidate."

At his headquarters, Mr. Smith referred to the scrutineer refusal as "a violation of democracy."

SMITH EXPLAINS
Mr. Smith said he was entitled to have people watch to see who voted, and if necessary have some people challenged. Speaking to members of his staff at headquarters, he made it clear it had been his intention to keep his own record of those who voted, so his election staff could phone those who had not.

He told his election staff to each take a phone book and a voters' list.

"Telephone all the ones marked," he instructed, "they won't let us in, so the other won't work."

Most MPs Back

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliamentarians appear to want a distinctive Canadian flag, but are unlikely to take action on it this session.

The proposal by Bona Arseneault (L. Bonaventure), received support from members of all parties, along with some criticism.

Further action this session, however, seems remote as the resolution, in effect, was killed by a motion to adjourn the debate. The adjournment motion by J. L. Macdougall (L. Vancouver Burrard) was carried by a vote of 137 to 73.

"It stands to reason the one agent they say we're allowed, can't scrutinize at 21 booths."

Mr. Patton said it was quite clear in the act that each candidate could only have one agent at the station.

He quoted section 49 of the Elections Act, which said: "Any person authorized in writing, but not otherwise, may act as the agent, counsel, attorney or clerk of a candidate during the continuance of an election."

'THAT MEANS ONE'
Mr. Patton declared: "It says 'the agent' and that means one."

Mr. Bate quoted section 30 of the act, which says: "During the time appointed for polling no person shall be entitled or permitted to be present in any polling station other than the officers, candidates, clerks or agents authorized to attend at the polling station, and such voters as are for the time being actually engaged in voting."

"It says 'agents' there," he pointed out.

Mr. Patton said: "It says 'agents' because its referring to the collection of agents—one for each candidate."

At his headquarters, Mr. Smith referred to the scrutineer refusal as "a violation of democracy."

Kelly's appearance was a shock to the 30 newsmen present at his first press conference since his release from a Soviet jail. His face was thin, white and drawn. His black hair was sparse and dull. His body was thin and emaciated.

The press conference was cut short after less than 30 minutes as even hard-bitten correspondents protested his ordeal.

Kelly vanished from West Germany in January, 1946. The following autumn Moscow authorities announced that he had been sentenced to 10 years in prison on espionage charges.

Years of effort by the British embassy to gain his release were fruitless. Then, in October of this year, the Soviets announced he had been pardoned. He was handed over to British authorities in Berlin on Nov. 16.

A British board of inquiry cleared him of desertion charges after hearing his story of his capture by the Russians and subsequent imprisonment.

Dean, a law partner of Dulles, said the decision to continue current talks with Communist negotiators was reached at the Bermuda conference of the Big Three chiefs of staff.

THURSDAY, DEC. 10, 1953

The Results of Bermuda

THE BERMUDA CONFERENCE has produced two constructive projects but delayed a third. It agreed to a foreign ministers' conference with Russia on the future of Germany and Austria. Undoubtedly it saw in advance and approved President Eisenhower's bold attempt to break the atomic deadlock in the United Nations. But there is nothing to indicate that the European Defense Community, generally regarded as the main business at Bermuda, has made the slightest progress.

The forthcoming Berlin conference should not be allowed to raise excessive hopes in the free world. Russia is willing to discuss a settlement in Germany and Austria, without any of the impossible advance conditions laid down in its first note. Unless its whole foreign policy has changed, Russia will not agree to the re-unification of Germany—the hard ore of the European problem—on any terms acceptable to the West. For its minimum terms have always been the complete disarmament, weakness and neutrality of Germany as a prospective Communist satellite. Where Western policy is based on the primary premise of German rearmament as essential to the defense of all western Europe.

It is difficult, therefore, to see what concrete results can be accomplished at Berlin. Perhaps, however, the meeting will have the preliminary effect which Sir Winston Churchill has so long advocated. He believes that if specific settlements in the power struggle are impossible at the moment, it is possible, by candid discussion with the Russians, to create at least the beginnings of a new atmosphere in international affairs from which settlements may gradually come later on. His hopes will receive a preliminary test at Berlin. There the Russians may indicate whether they desire a relaxation of world tensions or whether the problem of Germany is still being used only for propaganda purposes.

These matters have been overshadowed by Mr. Eisenhower's magnificent speech in the United Nations last Tuesday. It obviously represents his supreme effort to bridge the present schism of the world.

In the London press, it was reported from Bermuda that Sir Winston had been shocked at reading an earlier draft of the President's speech because it seemed to represent a bullying threat to use the United States' unequalled power recklessly to compel a world settlement. On the contrary, the delivered speech contains no threats but pleads for the co-operative control and prohibition of all atomic armaments because, in the view of an eminent soldier, they threaten to extinguish civilization itself.

When Mr. Eisenhower says, carefully measuring his words, that the atomic stockpile of the United States today could wreak more havoc than all the bombs, shells and other ammunition exploded during the Second World War, he is not exaggerating the danger of a third war. The destruction of civilization is no longer a phrase. It will be the inevitable result if the final horror is unleashed.

For years the United States has attempted to bring atomic power under control and has been frustrated by Russia, which will not agree to international inspection of its weapons. Mr. Eisenhower therefore proposes a new approach. He would set up an international stockpile of fissionable material for peaceful uses. All the great nations would contribute to this pool, thus voluntarily reduce their military use of the atom and perhaps learn gradually how to co-operate in a wider system of control over weapons.

This assuredly would be a small beginning but probably nothing more is possible under present conditions. At all events, Russia's good intentions will now be put to a clear test. If it will not agree even to use some of its atomic power for peaceful purposes, under international control, it will not agree to anything. The suicidal race must then continue.

There was more in Mr. Eisenhower's speech, however, than an attack on the specific problem of the atom. Quite evidently he was attempting to overcome the terrifying confusions of American politics and the resulting damage to American leadership throughout the world. He was telling the world that, for all its internal squabbles, the United States has no intention of bullying anyone, of using its power for anything but peaceful purposes. And the sincerity of this great and puzzled man rang out on the radio throughout the world.

His assurance certainly was needed and so far as he personally is concerned will be everywhere accepted by the free peoples. Whether he can go on to control the confusions of American politics remains to be seen.

In these larger events the problem of the European Defense Community, on which the whole plan of European defense is based, remains in abeyance solely because no French government is ready or able to act on it. But this delay cannot continue long, if for no other reason than because West Germany intends to arm itself, either in an international arm or outside it.

Should Receive Equal Treatment

ORATORIOS HAVE BEEN PERFORMED in the Royal Theatre during the past three years, sung by the Victoria Choral Society and accompanied by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra. On three occasions Mr. Graham Stead has conducted the "Messiah"; he has also done "Elijah." Mr. Hans Gruber has conducted the Mozart Requiem.

Our purpose in recalling these productions is to point out a glaring discrimination in their treatment by the Provincial Government. "Elijah" and the Requiem were Symphony subscription concerts, and amusement tax was not imposed. But each "Messiah" concert in the past, presented by the Choral Society, has had to pay the tax, and this will be true also of next week's performance of Haydn's "Creation."

It is to be noted that all performances have had the same conductors, the same players, the same singers, and they were given in the same theatre. But they received different treatment from the taxing authorities.

There is little need to argue the merit in encouraging so laudable an enterprise as the Victoria Symphony Orchestra by making its performances tax-free. But are the same arguments not applicable to the productions of the Choral Society, with the additional factor that they have been entirely religious in character?

Here is a case of discrimination which no doubt has escaped the notice of the authorities, but which should receive early attention.

Why Wait for Others?

CANADA'S CURRENT APPROPRIATION for the United Nations technical aid program, by which the development of backward countries is assisted, is $800,000, or at 5½ cents per capita. The government's offer to increase this sum to $1,500,000, virtually double, if other contributing nations will do likewise, indicates that our budget could stand the additional expense. But the generous impulse has been left dependent on similar feelings in others, and thereby robbed of effect.

The situation that has developed in a world of "haves" and "have nots" is sufficiently serious to demand immediate attention and action on the part of fortunate lands. Large areas of the globe are providing less than reasonable standards of living for their human inhabitants. And all authorities who have delved into the problem are clear in their warning that a definite threat to the peace of the world exists in these conditions.

With this in mind, the Canadian Government might well review its offer with a thought to removing the qualifying provision that other countries must also increase their appropriations. Direct action might find others ready to follow our lead.

As to whether we can afford to increase our assistance to backward nations, the question arises, can we afford not to do so?

Cyclists on the Highway

RCMP officers have picked up a boy cyclist whose careless riding on an improperly equipped machine at night created an unnecessary hazard on the highway near View Royal.

The culprit has been required to pay court costs for his hearing, has been given suspended sentence, and has had his bicycle impounded.

It is to be hoped the example made of the youth will impress other cyclists with the need for greater care. Despite laws to the contrary, it is a common sight to see bicyclists traveling abreast on the highway.

Because of their uncertain progress they frequently force overtaking cars far over the usual lanes of travel. That, in turn, creates a hazard for oncoming traffic. The danger is not so much that a driver will hit a cyclist, but that in avoiding him, he may run into another car.

The cyclist enjoys certain rights on the road. Those rights should not be infringed. But when no responsibility is shown by the cyclist, when he ignores the laws of the country and common sense, he deserves strict attention from the police, both for his own sake and in the interests of general safety.

LOOSE ENDS

In Heaven's Chancery

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A THOUGHTFUL and charitable man who would be the first to relieve any sufferer here in Canada, asks me how we can reconcile any relief to the starving children of Korea with the iron laws of the late Thomas Robert Malthus. By that scholar's reasoning, more than a century old, the world's population threatens to outstrip its food supply and something must be done about it pretty soon if civilization is to feed and support itself.

Therefore, as a Malthusian theorist may argue, we are upsetting the very balance of nature itself when we keep alive many people whom nature obviously intended to eliminate. In Korea, for example, we are only helping to over-populate the world and assure a general starvation in the future when we relieve a local starvation at the moment.

THE theory of Malthus is interesting and much can be said for it in the long run. Since his time, however, the world has changed quite a lot. It may soon know how to extract food from the sea or other sources by scientific tricks now under intensive study. Nevertheless, even if we can somehow feed several billion more people, the world is getting overcrowded and overcrowding usually results in wars which may be somewhat inconvenient when fought with atomic weapons.

If Malthus was right and the growth of the world's population cannot be allowed to continue indefinitely, the practical question is how that growth can be arrested. It can be effectively arrested by letting people starve or, even more rapidly and perhaps more mercifully, by killing them in war. Malthus, a minister of the Church of England, would be the last to advocate such easy solutions, especially when others are available in the falling birthrate which always accompanies a rising standard of living.

But all this scientific reasoning, all the statistics of the census takers, all the debates of the schoolmen, who used to consider how many angels can dance on the point of a pin and now consider how many children we can afford to keep alive—all this infatuation with sterile figures misses the basic fact, both in morals and in practical politics.

IN morals we don't need Malthus and his successors to tell us what we must do when we are confronted with starving children. We don't need to be economists. We know what to do because we are human beings and are born with immutable instincts that usually make a mockery of all sciences, including economics. We refuse to let children starve—that is, whenever we get around to thinking about it—not because starvation is bad economics, not because it is bad international politics, not because it will be dangerous to us in the well-fed countries, but simply because it is wicked. And we need no other argument.

There are, of course, other arguments of a practical sort. Among them the most obvious fact of our times—namely, that if countries like Canada persist in maintaining far higher standards of diet and living than most of the world, the great majority in due time will turn upon us and inevitably destroy us; that we cannot win the present struggle of the world sitting over a tucker tag or a turkey dinner while the great majority shivers over a bowl of gruel, in envy of us, in hatred and in ultimate hope of revenge.

IF WE refuse even the bowl of gruel to such fellow creatures as the children of Korea we shall get what we deserve in the end and the sooner the better. A civilization of that sort, as Carlyle once wrote in another connection, has sentence of death written down against it, in "Heaven's Chancery itself, and slowly or fast, advances incessantly towards its hour."

I doubt that such a sentence has yet been passed on western civilization. On the contrary, it seems to advance, for all its blunders and reeling stride, towards a better hour. Yet the clearest fact of all is that it cannot advance solely under the leadership and instruction of the scientists, economists and other experts, who actually are all marching in different directions at once, like Stephen Leacock's famous young knight. It can advance only by a sense of direction planted in the individual man from his birth, by something he knows without instruction, by a vague light which, for lack of a better word, we call conscience.

IN SHORT, we need no finespun knowledge, or a sense of politics, or even a rough grasp of the world revolution which we presently inhabit; we need only to recognize wickedness when we see it, we need only to imagine a hungry child and we will feed it if we can.

Our trouble is not really in our morals or in our politics. It is in our imagination. We haven't been able to imagine yet, in a well-fed country, what it is like to starve. We, the minority, have hardly begun to grasp, as more than a distant shadow, the hideous life of the majority.

That is why starving children in Korea can be of great use and value to us. For a moment anyway that picture enters the minds of people who have children of their own and opens their imagination to the wider vista of a hungry world, lying darkly around our tiny islands of comfort—tiny, vulnerable and, it may be, quite temporary.

Cautious, But Still Optimistic

BY VICTOR J. MACKIE, from Ottawa

R. T. HON. C. D. HOWE, minister of trade and commerce, predicts that 1954 will see Canadian business encountering stiffer competition. He forecasts that the sellers' market has to all intents and purposes disappeared and that the buyer is moving into a stronger bargaining position than he has occupied for many years.

The minister made his annual survey of business conditions in a recent speech in parliament. He said that the period of post-war inflation, which was given a shot in the arm by Korea, appeared to have come to an end.

The situation now developing was healthier than the indefinite continuation of a situation in which costs and prices were being pushed up by the pressure of excess demand. Inflation breeds slump and the sooner inflation can be brought to a halt the smaller the adverse impacts on the economy.

Inflationary tendencies had not been permitted to get out of hand in Canada, Mr. Howe remarked. There had been substantial increases in general price levels but these had been unavoidable, in his view. As a result of Canada's internal fiscal, monetary and credit policies and related measures, coupled with the government's multilateral trading policies, Canada had experienced little inflation and much less than most countries.

ADJUSTMENT FORECAST
Consequently the adjustment to the more competitive position that he is now forecasting would not cause serious difficulties in the Canadian economy. However there were particular industries and firms that might have trouble, he acknowledged.

There were some soft spots in the economy. They were showing up in the electrical appliance, textile and farm implement fields.

Sales of electrical appliances had been unusually heavy for more than a year. But during 1953 both production and imports had been more than keeping pace with sales. As a result there were signs of an excessive accumulation of inventories in some appliance lines.

In the textile field during 1953 economic activity was above the "vels" of the year previous despite the fact that many firms, particularly in the primary textile group, continued to operate below capacity. Retail clothing sales had been better. At the same time imports of both clothing and primary textiles had been increasing and inventories of finished goods, particularly at retail, were higher than a year ago.

FARM IMPLEMENTS
The farm implements group was also encountering declining markets this year. This situation had resulted from the unusually high volume of sales in immediately preceding years, rather than from any abnormally depressed market at the present time.

Because of the bumper crops harvested in Canada and the United States in 1951 and 1952, sales of farm implements soared to record heights. While unusually good crops had again been harvested this year, equipment sales had moved in line with the moderate decline in overall farm incomes.

This downward trend had been accentuated by lower shipments to other foreign markets attributable largely to exchange difficulties, according to Mr. Howe.

Summing up for 1954 Mr. Howe saw a continuation of a generally stable market. He recognized that capacities are expanding and larger outlets will be necessary to absorb the increasing volume of production. With the emergence of more competitive conditions on an international scale, marketing problems will be encountered in some industries. But generally speaking the 67-year-old businessman's politician predicted that the pessimists are going to be wrong again.

NURSING HOME TITLE

According to a statement by an aldermanic candidate as reported in the newspapers, $450,000 of Dominion, Provincial and City of Victoria moneys have been provided towards the cost of the building of the proposed new nursing home here, but none of the governments will be able to claim ownership, or even part ownership, of the building when completed and could not sell it if they so desired. Instead, it will belong to a private firm.

Who, or what, is this private firm and who are its members? How much of the building and operating costs of the home are the members of this firm prepared to supply and by how much will the city benefit from receipt of taxes and profits from operation?

SUPPORTING THE FARMER

In your issue of Nov. 27 you printed an article wherein Mr. Henry G. Robinson, secretary-manager of V.I. Dairy-men's Association, accused Mr. Kenneth Kiernan of being "definitely unfair" in setting basic quotas on three bad production months.

May I be permitted to add my opinion in support of Mr. Robinson. Why should our small dairy farmers be forced to turn over cans of milk free to keep up their quota when they need every cent to pay for their feed?

ANSCOMB FINANCING

We seem to be living in an age when uncorrected misstatements soon come to be regarded as fact.

In this regard I would like to say that when Herbert Anscomb took over the finance portfolio from John Hart the provincial sinking fund (a fund in which money was placed to pay off provincial obligations) was approximately $26,000,000 short and when Mr. Anscomb left the cabinet the deficit had not only been made up but there was a surplus as well.

In fairness to a man who has devoted more than 25 years of his life to public service these facts should be made known.

There are many of us who believe that Herbert Anscomb was the most efficient public servant the people of British Columbia ever had in the finance department.

XMAS OR CHRISTMAS

There is a story told in a recent copy of the Readers Digest of a Japanese youth who was puzzled at the sight which the Christmas season offers at this time of the year. He asked: "Whose birthday do we celebrate?"

Not only do the little heathen wonder at the meaning of all the glitter and glamour surrounding a be-whiskered and gaudily dressed old man to whom much attention is given! Is this Santa Claus' birthday anniversary, and if not, whose is it?

Many people of this nominally-Christian continent are amazed at the little evidence of the birth of Christ, whose very name, "which is a name above every name," has even been submitted by an algebraical sign denoting an unknown quantity to wit: Xmas for Christmas!

Our generation seems to have forgotten, if ever they knew it, that the purpose of Christ's coming to earth was that "He might save His people from their sins." The thought, apparently uppermost in the mind of many, is that this is merely a day when they can indulge in excess in all that caters to the flesh, ending for many of them, a day of world-blessing into one which each year produces a grim harvest of sad casualties!

CREATION AND EVOLUTION

In your issue of Saturday, December 5, Mr. G. Holdcroft quotes Mr. G. K. Chesterton as authority for his own refusal to accept as factual the scientific theory of evolution as opposed to the one of creation as accounting for the existence of life and of matter.

Mr. Holdcroft however omitted mention of authority on the other side such as the Church of England which in 1923 appointed a committee of 25 bishops headed by the two Archbishops of York and Canterbury to study and report on matters affecting church doctrine, and that in 1938 their report was presented to the General Assembly which adopted as orthodox the suggestion that "There is nothing in the two conflicting and contradictory accounts in Gen. I and Gen. II, to prevent acceptance of the evolutionary theory since these are merely mythical and symbolic rather than historical," and they added, "The inerrancy of the Bible can not be maintained in the light of present day knowledge."

And I am informed by ministers of that church body that in 1926 the United Church of Canada openly accepted as fundamental the scientific theory of evolution.

DEFIANCE

The mere fact that the Soviets are angry enough at their loss in the by-election to now accuse the opposition of collusion is somewhat pitiful; but what is really serious is the defiance they are now showing at spurning the wish of the people.

On the surface the determination of Mr. Bennett to have Mr. Gunderson accompany him to Ottawa would appear to rank as sheer obstinacy if, of course, the electorate were not fully aware of the implications: the financial affairs of the province are definitely the people's business, and already the economic wheels are creaking in spite of all the oil the taxpayers have provided.

The by-election has proved that the people have been alerted to the danger of a dictatorship and the consequent increase of the bureaucracy that has already been grafted onto their way of life.

One can fully understand the Premier's pride in his position of power but cannot help puzzling as to what position does he hold on the so-called Social Crediters board of directors? Who exactly are these people who so suddenly disembarked from the Trojan horse and donned the toga of Social Credit? By their manners they do not appear to understand the democratic way or the good sportsmanship of fair play.

The people have emphasized that they do not want Mr. Bennett's choice of finance minister, so what now? Mr. Bennett must meet the legislature before any commitments made at Ottawa are ratified. Should the Premier persist in taking the man the people have rejected it automatically places him in the position of being a front for someone behind the scenes.

MAKING MONKEYS OF MEN

The Piltdown mystery which gained world-wide fame and baffled the best brains of paleontologists to determine the claims for or against the evolutionary theory has been declared a hoax by authorities at the British Natural History Museum. The report signed by three scientists, more or less eminent in their profession, said: "The faking of the mandible (jawbone) is so extraordinarily skillful, and the perpetration of the hoax appears to have been so entirely unscrupulous and inexplicable, as to find no parallel in the history of paleontological discovery."

It has been established that the skull was that of "a very thick-headed man" of debatable age, the teeth of which have been pared down to resemble the jaw of a primitive man. The jaw is that of a modern ape treated with potassium bichromate and iron salt to give it an aged appearance.

While the Bible states that God made man in His own image it appears that someone has been making monkeys out of a lot of people.

Location of Whatshan Powerhouse Questioned

VANCOUVER (CP) — A mining geologist who visited the Whatshan hydro project while it was being built said Wednesday he thought at the time the powerhouse was in a dangerous position.

Dr. Augustus C. Skerl was a surprise witness at the royal commission hearings in Vancouver of the Whatshan slides. In the fall of 1949, he said, he could not help but notice "that to me the powerhouse was in a dangerous position. I just did not like the situation."

The B.C. Power Commission's chief engineer, A. W. Lash, responsible for design and construction of the project, was recalled to the stand and said that various earth movements before the slides in August did not strike him as any indication of danger.

Wolf-Ravaged Caribou Fail Arctic Tribes

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (BUP)—Roving wolf packs today were reported to have driven caribou herds from settlements in the Northwest Territories, threatening the Eskimos with a meat shortage.

Reports indicated that the usual fall migration of the caribou had failed to make its appearance, and Eskimos had been reduced to a fish diet for the past eight weeks.

"These barren lands are now literally infested with wolves," said Rev. John R. Sperry from the Arctic coast settlement of Coppermine.

The wolves marauded both the caribou herds and dried meat caches which the Eskimos set out after the summer hunt. Several inland Eskimo tribes migrated to Coppermine to fish for the winter until the caribou herds turn up.

Lowest Property Tax In B.C. for Oak Bay

Retiring Reeve Paints Bright Picture At Annual Meeting of Municipal Ratepayers

A prophecy of early and maximum development of Oak Bay with the lowest stable property tax in the province was made by retiring Oak Bay Reeve P. A. Gibbs, MLA, in a report to the ratepayers Wednesday night.

Over 100 persons in the municipal hall heard their reeve of four years promise municipal fulfillment within "10 or 15 years." In spite of "inequitable" school costs, he predicted "little relief is in sight" with regard to the latter.

Reeve Gibbs said a "keen demand" for homesites in Oak Bay will soon take up all newly developed land in the northern part of the municipality and public works would be reduced to maintenance.

He said lowering of taxes will depend on the national economy as affected by increased world trade and more specifically, the "nature and disposition of financing of school costs."

Present methods, he said, put an excessive share on Oak Bay and he was concerned with recent modifications which call for the municipalities to borrow 100 per cent of the sums required for school construction.

While the province is committed to repay half the loan, a municipality's borrowing power is curtailed for general purposes, he thought.

He struck at the recent government enactments calling for equalization of assessments for school purposes.

He called it "contentious" because it introduces for municipal assessment machinery and fixtures, including landlord and tenant fixtures. He said it was discriminatory in that industrial areas will pay a heavier share of district costs.

"Unless a new formula, promised for the spring session (of the legislature), overcomes the difficulties... I see little hope for the adjustment of unfair school costs... unless Oak Bay is reconstituted as a separate school district," he concluded. (Councillors' reports, Page 21.)

Youths Recaptured After 14th Escape

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Police caught two 11-year-old boys, identified as escapees from the Boys' Industrial School near Port Coquitlam, trying to enter a Kitsilano Beach area concession stand Wednesday.

Police said the youths had escaped 14 times in the past seven months.

to protest the department of education's stand in sending their children to school. A delegation of seven Sons of Freedom and independent Doukhobor sympathizers met with a committee of members of the welfare department, school boards and other representatives here Wednesday asking that children at the New Denver sanatorium be "set free."

If the children are not released, "then we must leave the country for we will never allow our children to go to school," the delegation said. The children were taken over as wards by the provincial government after their parents were arrested, convicted and sentenced to jail terms for taking part in a mass nude parade in September.

Members of the Christian Community of Brotherhood have written letters to Doukhobor "headquarters" at Canmore, Sask., claiming the children at New Denver are suffering in attending school classes. Although the children protested briefly on the first day of schooling, school inspector J. J. McKenzie said they have now taken an interest in the work.

GIBBS BELIEVES FINANCES BIG AMALGAMATION HURDLE

In a report to the ratepayers Tuesday evening, Oak Bay Reeve Archie Gibbs took a moment to quash "proponents of metropolitan schemes who have not analysed municipal operating costs."

He quoted figures for four municipalities of Greater Victoria to prove Oak Bay's net debt had increased only 17 cents per person in the 1951-52 period, while Victoria's had increased $6, Saanich's $40 and Esquimalt's $28.

He showed further how Oak Bay's costs per capita for general government, police and fire protection, sanitation and parks were far less than those of the city.

FOR FANS OF ALL AGES! "THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH!"

BAGPIPES - ARE NOT OF SCOTTISH ORIGIN - A FACT THAT WAS REVEALED BY JOHN H. HARRIS, PRODUCER OF "BRIGADOON" DURING RESEARCH INTO SCOTTISH TRADITION AND COSTUMES. THEIR ORIGIN LIES IN THE REMOTEST PAST... CAN BE TRACED TO ANCIENT PERSIA - THENCE TO EGYPT - CHALDEA AND ANCIENT GREECE. THAT BAGPIPES WERE INTRODUCED TO THE BRITISH ISLES BY THE ROMANS IS A FACT SUPPORTED BY THE DISCOVERY OF A SMALL BRONZE FIGURE PLAYING BAGPIPES IN THE REMAINS OF A ROMAN CAMP IN BRITAIN.

IN THE "SWORD DANCE" SCENE FROM BRIGADOON - PICTURED ABOVE - THE AUTHENTIC TARTAN OF SIX CLANS ARE TO BE SEEN - STEWART, BRODIE, GORDON, CHATHAM, AND BOTH BUCHANANS.

"BRIGADOON" IS TOPS

Highlighting this year's production of Ice Cycles is the exuberant, tuneful musical comedy favorite "Brigadoon." There are, in addition, 20 scintillating acts. After nine years, Ice Cycles is still a great family show, and today with the addition of "Brigadoon" as one of the lavish production numbers, it is still keyed to family entertainment at its best. Last year, of course, it was Walt Disney's immortal "Cinderella" that keynoted the show along with the Teddy Bear Picnic that was such an uproarious success with both young and old.

The year before it was "Boyz the Clown" and his collection of laughable characters in Raggedy Rhythm that caused children to clap their hands. The 1954 show is no different! The sensational "Brigadoon" number is backed by the family appeal of the side-splitting Monkey Business motif, featuring not three but four wise monkeys. Costumes are designed to give the production a glowing quality that takes the audience away from reality into a world of make believe... of fairytale personalities, of twinkling skates and music and gaiety.

Those who have seen and enjoyed previous Ice Cycles productions will acclaim "Brigadoon" as the most enthralling number to date.

A score of brilliant acts built around this superb number, features the pick of ice skating stars of today; a youthful cast, filled with sparkling zest which adds a vibrant, refreshing glow to the entire performance.

"They seem to enjoy themselves so much that it helps me to enjoy myself," you'll hear patrons say. And it's not an act—it's the spirit of youth.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Now about the Glasgow Rangers, the famous Scottish Football Association club which is scheduled to play here next year.

The question: Will they have all their stars? It would appear not judging by an article in the Sunday Mail (the copy courtesy of Bob Watson) and other reports following England's disastrous defeat by Hungary in the most recent eyebrow-raising international match.

According to these reports the storm between the Rangers and the SFA over the trip evolves about the dignity of Scottish football.

On the one hand the Rangers are determined that when they go abroad they must, for the sake of their name and that of Scottish football, travel with their full team. On the other the SFA are equally adamant that the prestige of Scotland in the World Cup series scheduled for Switzerland is more important.

In effect, the Rangers have been told that no player picked for the World Cup series will be allowed out of the country when the season ends in April until after the Switzerland games have been played.

Every player chosen for Scotland will be under the jurisdiction of the SFA from the end of the regulation season until the games are concluded. They will undergo intensive preparations including matches against continental sides in order to keep them fit.

And it could be that three or four members of the Rangers will be picked for the 20-man squad. Young, Cox, Waddell, Prentice and McCall are high in favor. The team will not be announced until April.

However, the problem will likely solve itself, especially if only two members of the Rangers are chosen as then the performance of the team here in Canada would not be materially affected.

As of the moment, it would appear that the deal presented to the Rangers is this:

Okay, boys, pack your bags for Canada but if you're picked for Scotland, we're certain you'll like Switzerland.

Mexico City Ready for Majors

The news report the other day had it that Mexico City was being considered as a future entry in the International League and that the International League would become the third Major League in time. This ties in with what Jack Corbett told us during the Western International Baseball meeting here.

The former minor league manager who now peddles baseballs and its by-products for his sustenance apparently has a finger on the inside track of the Mexico City situation. And if the University City Stadium at Mexico City, a fabulous place, isn't made available for baseball, Jack said there is another site which would suit equally as well for a park of Major League proportions.

However, the University City Stadium appears to be an ideal location. For according to our wandering city editor Lloyd Baker, who recently visited Mexico, the stadium is a tremendous structure.

It seats 110,000, is concrete throughout with steel arm rests and backs for each individual seat; is set up for all types of sport; also has an Olympic specification swimming pool and a parking area for 12,000 cars, the areas being on different levels and immediately adjacent to the exits.

The outside wall is being covered with murals in natural-colored stones which tell the Olympic story and the whole thing "swoops" upward, one might say, making it highly attractive. The Stadium, currently being completed, will be ready for the Pan-American Games next year and it is possible that it will house the Olympic Games in the not too distant future.

By golly, what a World Series take the players could haul down in a place like that!

Two Ballots to Decide NHL All-Star Awards

MONTREAL (BUP) — The National Hockey League has announced that sports writers and broadcasters will vote twice this season for the league's all-star team and individual player awards, with each half of the season worth 50 per cent toward final selection.

The first balloting will include games played up to January 1, 1954, and must arrive at NHL headquarters here by January 6. They will be made public as soon as they are tabulated. The second round of votes will be based on the last half of the regular championship schedule ending March 21.

The panel of voters is composed of hockey writers and broadcasters from each NHL city. Points will be awarded on the basis of five points for a first choice, three for a second, and one for a third. A unanimous first place choice would win 90 points.

Although more than three writers or announcers may vote in each league city, depending on the system used by individual clubs, each city must condense the votes down to three ballots.

The selectors will vote for the first and second all-star teams, and the winners of the Hart, Lady Byng Memorial, Calder Memorial, and James Norris Memorial trophies. The latter, the newest award, will be presented to the outstanding defenseman. First all-star team members receive $1,000 each from the league and members of the second team get $500.

The Vezina trophy for goalkeepers, and the Art Ross trophy for the scoring champion, are awarded automatically at the end of each season and also are worth $1,000 to the winner.

Bay Ruggers To Host Rowing Club

This week-end's English rugby menu will have an inter-city flavor when Vancouver Rowing Club's fifteen invade the city to take on the JBAA in a senior exhibition match at Macdonald Park Saturday afternoon.

It will be the third inter-city match for the Bays this season. In two trips to the Mainland, the local oarsmen beat North Shore All-Blacks, 9-3, but were beaten 6-0 by South Burnaby.

Two-game program will start at 2 with Oak Bay Wanderers and the Navy's senior squad ranging on the lower pitch. Inter-city game will start on the upper pitch at 2:30. Senior teams have been idle here for three weeks.

Latest word from the navy rugby officials is that they hope to field first and second division teams after Christmas.

No second division games are scheduled for this week-end as Victoria College students are engaged in Christmas exams.

Saanich Hoop

McMorran's will meet Brentwood in a Saanich and Suburban Juvenile Boys' Basketball League game in the Lake Hill gym tonight at 8.

Just Another Occupational Hazard

If you think a professional athlete's life is an easy one, you might get an argument or two from Terry Sawchuk, great goaltender of the NHL Detroit Red Wings. Here Sawchuk slumps to the ice, pawing at his brow, which is already starting to bleed. The puck that hit Sawchuk in the face, cutting him open, can be seen bouncing high in the air. However, stopping this shot with his face did not save the game for Sawchuk and the Wings as they were blanked 3-0 by Toronto. Others in the action are, left to right, George Armstrong, Gordy Howe and referee Bill Chadwick. (CP photo.)

Baseball Pension Plan Now Due for Scuttling

Art Worth Acquired By Eskimos

EDMONTON (CP) — Purchase of pitcher Art Worth and veteran catcher Bill Sheets from Spokane Indians was announced Wednesday by general manager John Ducey of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western International Baseball League.

Worth, a southpaw and native of Victoria, who once played semi-pro ball with Calgary, won 11 games and lost six with Spokane last season with compiling a 3.82 earned run average. He was voted to the WHL's first all-star team.

Sheets caught 111 games for Indians in 1953, hit .300 and batted in 53 runs. He will replace catcher Dick Morgan, sold to St. Paul Saints of the American Association.

Castellani Wins Slugfest From Turner

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rocky Castellani stood off the savage buzz-saw fighting of Gil Turner with toe-to-toe slugfests Wednesday night to win a unanimous 10-round decision in a wild bout in Cleveland Arena. The victory strengthens Castellani's bid for a middleweight title shot.

Castellani, No. 2 middleweight contender, weighed 157 to 155 for the Philadelphia perpetual-motion man, fourth-ranking contender.

For three rounds, the Cleveland speared Turner at will with sharp lefts to the head as the crowd boomed for more action. Then Turner went into action, and there was scarcely a let-up the rest of the way.

International League May Get Major Status

TORONTO (BUP) — The International League will be baseball's third major circuit within a year or two and will include Caracas, Mexico City and Havana, according to league president Frank Shaughnessy.

Shaughnessy told The Globe and Mail in a telephone interview from New York that "it's no idle dream. It just has to happen that way. Distance does not mean a thing. Airlines have cut down what used to be insurmountable miles to a few hours of traveling time."

Havana will join the International League this year, Shaughnessy said, if it retains eight teams, and Mexico City will be invited, maybe within another year, along with Caracas to complete a five-country league.

"We have to go for big cities where the people really want good baseball," Shaughnessy said. "If we want not only to survive but to expand into something worthwhile, we can't go for the smaller cities any more."

"It's only about four and a half hours by air from New York to Havana and about three and a half hours from Havana to Caracas. It's another four and a half hours from Havana to Mexico City."

stick almost as soon as he can walk." He was brought up to the big leagues at the tail end of the 1945-1950 season and played in two games.

The next year he won the Veniz Trophy, averaging just 1.75 goals scored against him for the year. Just how the Blackhawks talked the Toronto Maple Leafs out of the curly-haired goalie is somewhat of a mystery.

But it is no mystery that Rollins has made the difference between complete collapse and what Hawk fans hope will be a rejuvenation of Chicago hockey.

Wild Donnybrook Marks Leafs' Win

Roughest Game on Record Sees 41 Penalties Called

Toronto 3, Montreal 0; Detroit 3, New York 3

The repercussions were fast today after what some in National Hockey League history.

Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, the two "feuding" clubs in the business, kicked up such a penalty ruckus Wednesday night that league officials probably will go into a huddle to take some action.

A record 41 penalties, give or take a few, were handed out by referee Frank Udvari as the third-place Leafs blanked the league-leading Canadiens 3-0 in Toronto.

It was a ruckus, to say the least. By the time Udvari had finished his work in the third period only light players were expected to come thick and fast today after what some say was the roughest game on the ice and the benches were empty. Conn Smythe, Leafs managing director, said it was the "war of 1812."

The big blow-up, which surpassed the 25 penalties given to Detroit Red Wings and the Leafs, Oct. 12, 1952, came at 18:12 of the third period after Leafs had taken a 3-0 lead.

Thirty-one penalties were assessed in that period alone, including four majors and 21 10-minute misconducts and automatic $25 fines.

In the only other game Wednesday night, second-place Red Wings and the fifth-place New York Rangers fought to a 3-3 deadlock at New York.

Then Everybody Hit Anybody

The Toronto game, fairly quiet for the first two periods, broke wide open in the third when the Leafs' Ron Stewart and Montreal's Bud MacPherson started trading blows. It was mayhem after that.

Tom Johnson of Montreal moved in to separate them and Stewart slugged Johnson on the chin. Players rushed from the benches and sticks and gloves were flying.

At one time, Harry Watson tackled three Montreal players. Bob Solinger of the Leafs and Canadiens' Bert Olmstead started punching. MacPherson switched to Toronto centre Eric Nesterenko. Paul Marnick of Montreal and Toronto defenseman Fern Flaman slugged it out.

The sellout crowd of 13,426 was going wild. Udvari was frantic. Nobody could tell who was hitting whom.

However, Udvari got things squared away and ordered both coaches to clear their benches.

After giving four penalties in the first period and six in the second, he threw the book in the third.

Udvari ordered major penalties for fighting to MacPherson, defenseman Tom Johnson of Montreal, Nesterenko and Stewart after the big fight.

Each team had only four players on the ice. Toronto had defenseman Hugh Bolton and Tim Horton, centre Ted Kennedy and goalkeeper Harry Lumley. Montreal went with rightwinger Bert Olmstead, defenseman Butch Bouchard, centre Johnny McCormack and netminder Gerry McNeil.

Said Smythe: "I don't want to say much. All I want to know is when the Canadiens will be back here."

Clarence Will Likely Act

There was no mention of NHL president Clarence Campbell being asked to investigate the brawl. However, some officials said after the game "we don't doubt that he will."

The Leafs took a 1-0 lead on George Armstrong's goal at 4:56 of the first period. Kennedy and leftwinger Sid Smith tallied in the second.

At New York, Rangers, who have not beaten Red Wings this season, led until the final 30 seconds. Camille Henry, centre Max Bentley and defenseman Hy Buller accounted for the Ranger scoring. Gordie Howe, Tony Leswick and Johnny Wilson tallied for Detroit.

Rangers spotted the Wings two goals in the second period before coming to life. Howe scored at 3:01 when he battled the puck past Johnny Bower and Leswick made it 2-0 at 8:44.

Bentley put the Rangers back in the game at 12:51 and Buller deadlocked the score at 18:40. Then Henry came through in the third period but Wilson ruined that.

Wayne Brown Threat For WHL Point Lead

Top scorers in the Western Hockey League are slowly closing in on Calgary Stampede's Frank Ashworth, the leading point-getter for the last month.

While Ashworth still holds his lead, with a 34-point total on 11 goals and 23 assists, he is only two points ahead of Seattle's Wayne Brown, who has been as hot as a stove in recent games and has 32 points in a league-pacing 20 goals and 12 assists.

Close behind Brown are Calgary's Sid Finney with 31 points and Enlo Selizick of Calgary. George Senick of Saskatoon and Edmonton's Bud Poile, all with 30 points.

Vancouver Canucks' Lorne Worsley still leads the goal-tenders with a 2.31 average, and Saskatoon's Louis Fontinato is the leading penalty-getter with 75 minutes.

CHIHAWKS HAVE TROUBLES, BUT...

Through No Fault of Al's

CHICAGO. (BUP) — He's allowed more goals than any net minder in the National Hockey League and his team is in last place, but spindly-shanked Al Rollins rated today as one of the best goalies in the league.

The slender, handsome Rollins has drawn praise from hockey experts both years he has been with the Chicago Blackhawks.

Rollins has an average of slightly less than three goals per game but his agility and cat-like reflexes have prevented higher scores from being registered against the Hawks.

The Hawks lost six of their first seven games and tied the other one.

In all these efforts, Rollins played every game as if his life and the Stanley Cup were at stake.

After a verbal spanking by general manager Bill Tobin and the somber presence of the man with the checkbook, Jim Norris, the Hawks revived to beat the New York Rangers and the Montreal Canadiens.

In both games Rollins' work was the main factor in the victories. In the New York contest, he made 41 saves, many seemingly incredible stops.

In Saturday's 1-0 thriller against Montreal, he spread out across his net like an eagle as he smothered shots, dove on some and kicked away the rest. At the end of the game the entire Hawk bench swarmed on him as the hero in the team's first shutout of the year.

Rollins, a 27-year-old native of Vanguard, Sask., has been playing hockey since he was eight years old.

"Nothing unusual about that," he said. "Where I lived parents give a kid skates and a hockey stick almost as soon as he can walk."

He was brought up to the big leagues at the tail end of the 1945-1950 season and played in two games.

The next year he won the Veniz Trophy, averaging just 1.75 goals scored against him for the year. Just how the Blackhawks talked the Toronto Maple Leafs out of the curly-haired goalie is somewhat of a mystery.

But it is no mystery that Rollins has made the difference between complete collapse and what Hawk fans hope will be a rejuvenation of Chicago hockey.

Canadian Open Golf Under Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — A statement that the 1954 Canadian open golf championship might prove the biggest bust in its history brought quick denials Wednesday night from Canadian golf officials in Toronto and Vancouver.

Officials at both points denied statements by a highly-placed golf authority in Montreal that the tournament would entice few Americans to journey to Vancouver's Point Grey Club, July 14-17.

The Montreal authority said the Royal Canadian Golf Association has been informed that the United States Professional Golfers' Association will keep the Point Grey date on its calendar, but that it need expect few top-rank American players on hand as the most westerly point in the U.S. tournament circuit next summer is St. Paul, Minn., some 1,800 miles away.

INSIST NO CHANGE

He said the RCGA suggested the venue be changed, but western members insisted there be no change.

Bill Hamilton, secretary of the RCGA, commenting on the statement in Toronto, said it is unfortunate the PGA schedule doesn't fit in with the Vancouver venue but denied decision to hold the tournament there had caused a rift in the association.

"We were interested in Vancouver for next year's open to tie in with the British Empire games," he said.

In Vancouver, Les Wagner, chairman of the 1954 Canadian open, said he is "confident the open will be a success both financially and from the standpoint of name-player participation."

Ranger Shoot

Because of the poor turnout of shooters due to the windy, wet weather last Sunday, South Vancouver Island Rangers have decided to make this Sunday's prize shoot at their Luxton grounds open to the public.

It was originally slated as a closed membership program. There will be events for large-bore rifles, pistols and trap. Shooting starts at 10:30 a.m. Club's park grounds are located off Happy Valley Road, about a mile from Glen Lake corner.

Carey's Feats Recalled Here

By ROY THORSEN

Rex Carey, the former Victoria "blond bombshell" who hammered his way to B.C. and Canadian middleweight boxing crowns before the Second World War, is back in the news again, but this time the story has a military flavor.

He is now Captain Rex Carey of the famous English Bulls Regiment, who has returned to England after 14 years in the Canadian and British armies.

Canadian Press staff writer Alan Harvey met the former Victoria mitt-slinger the other day and was amazed to learn that although Rex had faced many an angry enemy in several countries "the toughest fight of my life was when I was a civilian."

Carey served as a soldier in Sicily, Italy, Ethiopia, Tripoli, Egypt and lately as a patrol leader against the Mau Mau gangs in Kenya, South Africa.

A Military Cross winner for his bravery in the face of the enemy during the last war, the former Victoria boxer still maintained to Harvey that his toughest fight was as a boxer.

Harvey quotes Carey as recalling:

"I was fighting a big American sailor in the States. He had a large picture of an 'omph' girl tattooed on his chest and every time he moved she seemed to wink at me.

"At the end of the fight, my negro second said: 'Boy, why did you fight so bad?' And I told him 'I couldn't keep my eyes off that damned girl.'"

Carey is now on leave in England and is sizing up the possibilities of what city street he came to Canada with his parents in 1919 and grew up in Victoria.

Rex showed his ability as a boxer at an early age and with good coaches at his back made rapid strides in the ring. He won British Columbia championships three times in a row. In December, 1937, he fought his way to the Canadian amateur middleweight crown defeating Paul Dyzandra of Winnipeg in the Canadian finals at Vancouver.

He later turned professional. Carey's boxing career was like his military career. He started from nothing to gain big advancements.

He joined the Canadian Scottish Regiment, Victoria, in 1939, switched to the PPCLI and went overseas in February, 1940. He rose from the rank of lance corporal to commissioned rank.

After the war—he spent part of his time as a prisoner-of-war in Italy—Carey transferred to the British army, forfeiting his Canadian passport.

While in Ethiopia's capital, Addis Ababa, he twice met and talked to Emperor Haile Selassie.

His most vivid recollection of Kenya was the time that a rhinoceros charged a group of English officers enjoying tea. The rhino caught one of the officers and hooked him with his nose horn. Miraculously, the officer was uninjured. The "spike" went through his back.

Carey's name ranks with that of Billy Buxton in the boxing picture of the pre-war days here. Billy is also still with the army, presently being stationed at an interior B.C. base.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.

The Score? Few Cared As Old-Timers Cavort

CALGARY (CP)—The clock was turned back for 60 minutes Wednesday night as the old-timers of hockey played a return engagement before a crowd of more than 5,000 appreciative youngsters and reminiscent oldsters.

You can write your own score. The scoreboard had it 8-6 but the press box made it 7-7.

Big guns were the middle-period old-timers—Gusty Gustason, Roy Ferguson and Billy Hudson who counted two goals each. Lorne Carr counted one goal and assisted on two to match the three-point individual record of Hudson who added an assist to his total.

Mitch Pecheil, Les Thirwell, Art Giroux, Ken Hunter, Joe McGoldrick, Dave Sweeney, Schirner and Eddie Wiseman scored singletons. Assists were credited to George Boothman, Alex Luft, Cully Wilson, Bill McDowell, Tommy Anderson, Tony Desmarais, Billy Creighton, Wiseman and Schirner.

Pike Declines Comment on Ranger Rumor

GUELPH, Ont. (BUP)—Al Pike, coach of the junior Biltmores, was mentioned today as a candidate for coach of the New York Rangers.

"No comment," Pike snapped.

Biltmore officials denied any knowledge of an impending shift for him.

Pike was offered the post before the National Hockey League season opened but turned it down. He spent six seasons with the Rangers, between 1939 and 1947, but now has his home and a sporting goods business here and is working on the second of a three-year contract with the Biltmores.

Triple 'Hat' Tricks Yet

Evans, Shamlock, Johnson Shine In City Commercial Puck League

By DENNY BOYD

Hat tricks, pure gold and silver to hockey players, were on the base metal market level Wednesday night at Memorial Arena, no less than three players registering triples in the two scheduled games.

Shuffling Joe Evans, one of the top snipers for Victoria Merchants, registered the first of the grand slams as he plunked three pucks behind Victoria V's 16-year-old rookie goal-tender Don Hamilton as Merchants got back into the winning habit with an 8-3 conquest of V's.

But that was just a mere indication of a market trend. In the second game of the night, between Navy and Nanaimo Clippers, economy went haywire as first Nanaimo player, registered his triple. However, Johnson's effort was in vain as the Navy club, which has finally found itself after a long period of floundering, bowed 6-4 to Nanaimo.

The most immediate conclusion that could be drawn from the results of these two and other recent games is that the league should be much closer after Christmas.

Nanaimo, in spite of their first-place standing, do not find the margin of superiority over the other teams they formerly enjoyed.

V's May Have Suffered Most

Second-place V's, who will be without regular net-minder Arnie Jorgensen, until late in January, may be hard pressed to hold their runner-up position. In addition, they may have lost the services of playing coach Fergie McPherson, who was carried from the ice Wednesday with a back injury that could prove costly.

Merchants, who had lost three out of their last four games prior to Wednesday's victory, are back in the groove and not at all happy about their unaccustomed third-place position.

Navy has only one victory to date but can be looked to from here on in. Wednesday they deserved a kinder fate than a two-goal loss as their forwards, but for a brief third-period lapse, were skating with their Nanaimo counterparts and their defense was protecting goalie Norm Jones like a rich uncle.

Merchants, with newcomer Jack Pinder in goal, formerly of the University of New Brunswick, started up as if they intended to break some scoring records. Halfway through the second period they were enjoying a 7-0 lead and V's hadn't been heard from.

Well, I Scored Didn't I?

Joe Marcoux, V's defenseman, scored one of the most grandiose goals of the season, shifting three Merchants out with a fake and blasting home a shot from the side. Marcoux, carried away with the joy of his artistry, held his hands aloft for almost half a minute and exhorted the fans to shower him with cheers. V's then scored two more quickies but were too far behind to catch up.

Evans added an assist to his three goals while Fred McColl had two goals and Toby Brown picked up three assists.

Navy also started on first, building up a 2-1 lead on first period goals by Johnson, and Johnny Neves with Doug Sutherland replying for Nanaimo.

After Arnie Duggan tied it in the second period, casually flipping in a backhand shot off Shamlock's pass, Johnson restored Navy's lead. But the persistent Shamlock got his first goal at the end of the second period to tie it and then blew in two more in the first three and a half minutes of the third frame to blow the sailors down.

Johnson completed his hat-trick.

Pedestrians Ignore City Traffic Lights

Survey Reveals Large Numbers Linger After Signal Changes

By DON INGHAM, Times Automotive Editor

Motorists have fumed for years about the little old lady who invariably is on the street when the light turns green, thus holding up four lines of cars.

But the little old lady, though persistent, is not the only offender.

An informal and likely inaccurate survey taken Tuesday at Douglas and View Streets between 3:25 and 3:55 p.m. showed offenders to be in the proportions that they are on the streets.

During 15 minutes of that period the lights turned green 30 times. Left on the street after the change were 92 women, 29 men and seven children, the latter with women and not responsible for having been dragged across the street.

The high number of tardy women is easily explained by their greater numbers during the shopping period.

A second check was made on the number of pedestrians who started off against the yellow light. More difficult to count, there were no violations.

It showed that in 10 light changes three men, nine women and five children (three of them with their mothers) were too impatient to wait for the next green light.

In the half-hour period two men and six women blithely crossed the street against the red light. Four of the women hurried and two sauntered.

Women, in fact, were the chief dawdlers, who showed little consideration for motorists when the light had changed.

Only one gentleman, quite elderly, seemed oblivious to the fact that motorists also use the city streets. In some baffling manner he managed to be in the way both crossing Douglas Street and again crossing View.

During the same time a good many motorists reached the corner, stopped for the lights and managed to leave the intersection quite clear for others approaching from the sides.

There were no violations.

Balance Essential To Car Crankshaft

Instalment 14.

When we think of balance, we think of scales such as a chemist or prospector uses, where equal weights on each side will cause the bar to remain horizontal.

This is static, or stationary, balance, by which crankshafts were forged and machined years ago. The shaft was rested on two level, straight bars of steel. If the shaft rolled, some metal was ground off any convenient spot on the lower side and it was tested again.

The process was repeated until the shaft stayed still in any position. It was then considered to be balanced, but in use it could be either smooth, or subject to violent vibration. Use of the imagination will explain why.

Static Balance

Picture a bicycle standing upside down with the chain off. The ball-bearing pedals and cranks revolve slowly until the heavy one is down. Now put weights on the light pedal until the cranks stay still in any position. The pedals then will be in static balance.

Now give the pedals a violent whirl. The machine will rock, and may fall over, because the pedals are not in the same plane of rotation and the right-hand one is heaving up while, six inches away on the other side, the left-hand one is heaving down.

This is what happens to crankshafts, and front car wheels and tires, that have only static balance.

Today the crankshaft is placed in a set of bearings that can record up and down thrust on a gauge.

Smooth at High Speed

It is revolved rapidly, at about 4,000 revolutions per minute, and metal is removed according to the gauge readings until each part of the crankshaft runs in balance. This is called dynamic, or running, balance, and accounts for the extreme high-speed smoothness of the modern engine.

If while driving you notice a wiggle in the steering wheel that gets worse as you go faster, it means the wheels are out of dynamic balance. Raising the wheel will show no heavy spot, but a trip to a firm with a wheel balancer will show a difference.

It will be mounted on a spindle in a horizontal position, and a spirit level will show it is balanced. When revolved, however, the wheel will vibrate wildly.

Remove Vibration

The machine tells where it is out of balance, and by how much. The cure is to attach a weight to the rim underneath the tire, and an equal weight on top at the other side. The weights, being equal, will not affect the static balance, but they will remove the vibration when the wheel is turning.

This situation could have been caused by patches on opposite sides of the tire, or even a crooked rim.

Once had a bad case in a drive shaft. A mechanic had removed a small plug to grease the universal joint and had replaced it with a large grease nipple. As he had done the same at the other end of the shaft, he thought they would balance. The result at 60 miles per hour was terrific.

Balanced tires and wheels so improve steering that it is well to have them checked.

If you happen to have your car undersealed, and it has an exposed, or Hotchkiss, drive shaft make sure none of the underseal is left on the shaft. A piece the size of a wad of gum will cause an unpleasant vibration at high speed.

1935 Car Like New After 107,000 Miles

W. N. C. Smith, above, rolled handsome 1935 Packard Super Eight from garage on Barkley Street for photo by Irving

Strickland. Big car has traveled total of 107,000 miles, has never had major motor job.

City Battery Manufacturers Back Product With Guarantee

Two Victoria men who have no fear of competing with one of North America's largest industries are Andy Ovcharick and Jack Palmer, who make Acme storage batteries at 1412 Quadra Street.

"We make them cheaper and we make them better," said the first half of the firm of "Andy and Jack."

"At least, we're the only battery manufacturers we know that give an unconditional two-year guarantee," Andy said. "If one of our batteries fails after 103 weeks of service the owner gets it repaired free of charge or gets a brand new battery. No other manufacturer will do that."

NEW PRODUCTS

Andy does the talking in the battery business. Partner Jack is the expert in the tire department of the firm.

"Please stress the fact we build new batteries," the aggressive young former lacrosse player and past president of the Shamrocks said. "We will repair and replace batteries, but the bulk of our work is on our new products."

The firm operates exactly like the big manufacturers, but on a smaller scale. Cases and covers are imported from Los Angeles, fibreglas comes from Toronto, Douglas fir separators are made in Vancouver and lead peroxide is shipped from Seattle.

Sulphuric acid and the lead used in making grids, posts, and connectors also come from Vancouver.

First process in building a battery is the casting of grids in an automatic trim caster that turns them out at the rate of 1,200 per hour. The grids, or plates, then are coated with lead peroxide, the active agent in a battery, and allowed to stand for 72 hours.

Negative and positive positive plates are welded to the terminal posts.

Fibreglas mats are attached to the positive plates to hold the active material in place, and when the two units are put together, like shuffled playing cards, the wooden separators keep the positive and negative plates from touching.

DOUBLE CHARGE

The completed grids are assembled in the cases, sealed, and the battery is given a 72-hour charge in a weak sulphuric acid solution. At the conclusion the weak solution is drained and replaced with the permanent solution, the battery is given a second overnight charge, and is ready for sale.

A full-fledged secondary industry and one of the handful in Victoria contributing to the automotive trade, the firm makes any type of wet battery required.

Six-volt car batteries are produced in greatest numbers, but the 12-volt batteries required by English cars demands a growing share of production. Marine installations and farm lighting units also are manufactured in any size required.

Marketing area of the firm is limited to Greater Victoria. "We're always behind just filling local needs," said Andy. "There isn't time to branch out."

Author Advises Long Warm-Up To Lengthen Life Span of Car

The way to drive a car 107,000 miles and still have it in tip-top shape, according to W. N. C. Clark, 150 Barkley Street, is to "not drive fast, but drive to last."

This author, and former soldier, airman and welterweight boxing champion of the RAF, drove all but 21,000 miles of the impressive total on the speedometer of his 1935 Packard, and has bought one part—a distributor cap.

"I always warm it up well before driving," he said in an interview at his home on Gonzales Hill.

He demonstrated by starting the car, setting that very useful but now extinct hand throttle to give a brisk idle, and letting it run until the temperature gauge showed the proper heat.

OIL IN GASOLINE

Mr. Clark also advises valve grinds every 15,000 miles, and steady use of an upper engine lubricant added to the gasoline. "I have heard that No. 10 oil also will keep valves from sticking," but the special additives seem to prevent carbon from forming," he said.

Mr. Clark does not boast of being a mechanic, but he understands the operation of an engine, and knows the treatment it requires for long life.

This 18-year-old car is as shiny now as it was when it left the factory, and runs perfectly. The eight-cylinder, 335-cubic inch engine is quiet as a ghost, yet lifts all 5,400 pounds of the car with a terrific surge of power when the throttle is pressed.

Doors close with the same solid "clunk" of those in a bank vault, and there is not a rattle or squeak in the whole car.

Although well into comparative old age, this car has a three-position control to govern shock absorbers and the type of ride required, lights that shine on running boards and in the interior when the doors are opened, and vacuum-assisted brakes.

OWNS ROLLS-ROYCE

Mr. Clark has two cars, and was proud of the fact that a coin set on edge on each radiator would not move while the motor was "revved up."

(His second car is a 1929 Rolls-Royce Phantom, huge and powerful, that is a story in itself).

The owner himself is much more interesting than either car. An Englishman, he wrote for aviation journals, fought in the trenches of France, finished an RAF observer's course and neared the end of his pilot training, wrote several books on boxing and "starred" in a training film, and departed from the sporting field long enough to write "An Introduction to Kant's Philosophy." As an author, he is known simply as Norman Clark.

Alice Carr Leaves Bequest To Children Whom She Loved

The sister of one of Canada's greatest artists, who loved and taught children in a little school in the James Bay district all her life, left a third of a small estate to the Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children.

Miss Alice Carr, sister of Emily Carr, who died in October, at 84, left an estate totaling $17,817. The will has just been probated in Supreme Court.

Miss Carr left her house on St. Andrews Street, situated near where she taught school and where Emily painted and wrote her books, to Mrs. Lillian Lone Rae, a niece. The bequest also includes a $1,000 legacy.

An Emily Carr painting valued at $3,000 was willed to friends. Mrs. Frank White, of Vancouver, is also to receive a legacy of $2,000.

The residue of the estate is to be turned over to the Solarium.

Won't Recognize Successor

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)—Judge William Clark, suspended by the state department as U.S. chief justice in Germany, said today he would preside "as usual" when court convenes Monday.

The state department said he was "surplus" but Clark N.J. jurist said: "I shall not charged he was being 'chast- ized' because of disagreements with U.S. High Commissioner James B. Conant."

He said the swearing in Wednesday of Associate Justice Carl W. Fulghum was "an illegal action."

The 63-year-old Princeton, N.J., jurist said: "I shall not recognize it."

New Courtenay River Bridge To Replace Aging Steel Span

COURTENAY—An allowance for construction of a new highway bridge over Courtenay River will be in 1954 provincial estimates, William C. Moore, M.L.A., announced this week after a conference with public works department officials in Victoria.

When the existing bridge was built in 1923 for $42,000, it was the only steel highway bridge north of Victoria.

Several accidents have occurred at the eastern approach, which includes a sharp rise and a bend in the road.

Casey Not Opposing School Building Plan

Method, Not Aim, Under Reeve's Fire; Trustee Jeune Defends Procedure

Reeve Joseph Casey, at an election meeting Wednesday, charged that the newspapers had given the erroneous impression that he is against the proposed school building program for Greater Victoria.

The reeve, speaking at Mount View High School, was referring to a statement in which he urged the electorate to vote down the school referendum to allow the borrowing of $3,390,000.

"I'm not against the building of schools," said the reeve. "I realize we need them, but I'm against the present method of voting the money to build schools. That is why I said I was against the referendum."

He favors a money-by-law being put to the people, stating exactly how much money is to be spent on certain projects.

Walter Jeune, school trustee for School Board No. 16, said that while he was in sympathy with the reeve's views, he felt that it was in the interest of ratepayers to vote in favor of the referendum, as Greater Victoria was badly in need of schools.

"The difficulties can all be ironed out later," he said. "Let's not hold up the program."

The public meeting was attended by all candidates seeking election to the Saanich council and police commission.

Swiss Ask Extradition Of U.S. Pilot Whitey Dahl

PARIS (AP).—Paris police said Wednesday they have been told Swiss authorities plan to extradite Harold E. Whitey Dahl, 4, American pilot arrested here last week and since charged with the theft of 12,000,000 francs ($34,285) in gold.

"Police at the same time confessed the man held in Fresnes prison here is the same Harold E. Dahl who won wide attention in 1937 when, as a pilot for the Spanish Republicans, he was shot down, captured and sentenced to death by the Spanish insurgents under Generalissimo Franco."

Dahl got a reprieve after his pretty wife sent her photograph and a plea for mercy to Franco. Dahl was released from Spanish custody in 1938.

For the last year he has been a pilot for Swiss Air. The theft with which he is charged occurred the night of October 5 when 59 pounds of gold bullion were missing when the Swiss Air plane piloted by Dahl arrived in Geneva from Paris.

Lieut. Alan John Woods, 31, Vancouver, has won the Queen's Commendation for outstanding service in saving his jet fighter after its engine quit during a flight.

FROGMEN SPEED SALVAGE OF SHIP'S LOST ANCHOR

PORT ALBERNI.—Recovery of a ship's anchor and chain is simple, if there are a few frogmen handy. When the British freighter Norman Monarch lost its ground gear Monday, the crew anticipated a long, arduous job of grappling.

Two frogmen came from Vancouver and solved the problem by taking a wire cable from a pile driver and attaching it to the anchor. It was raised easily and taken to the ship.

Fingerprint in Dead Man's Shack May Link Accused to Murder Scene

NANAIMO.—Cecil Sampson, Duncan Indian on trial here for the murder of Chew Deb, elderly Chinese, in June, 1950, was linked Wednesday with a fingerprint found on the back of a battered clock in the victim's shack near Cowichan River.

His wife, Edna, will face a murder charge at a later date.

Thomas Hurley, defense counsel, spent considerable time Wednesday cross-examining Const. D. J. Thompson, one of two RCMP officers sent to California in July to question Sampson and his wife, who were in the custody of Santa Clara County police.

$38 Million Deficit For Quebec Province

QUEBEC CITY (BUP)—The Quebec treasury had a deficit of $38,000,000 for the 1952-53 fiscal year, provincial Auditor A. J. Tolbec told the Legislative Assembly Wednesday.

The previous fiscal year ended with a $2,000,000 surplus.

WANTS NIGHT COURT

Traffic Fines Unfair To Workers—Cummins

E. C. "Ted" Cummins, candidate for a Saanich council seat, told a meeting of electors Wednesday evening that he favored a night court to deal with traffic offenses.

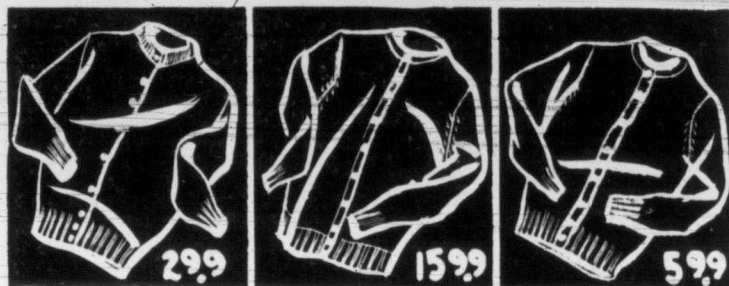

"I don't think the present court system is fair on the workingman," he said. "If a man breaks a traffic regulation he has to lose half a day in order to appear in court."

"Many men plead guilty rather than face the cost of fighting the case," he claimed.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

There will now be a slight pause Between election Times, while we consider the upcoming season of joy, goodwill, and cetera.

To save you time, trouble, and travail over the wondrous Yuletide season, Between Times now presents its annual handy-dandy guide to Christmas, otherwise known as "be sure to read all the sandy clauses in small print deep down in the contract."

HOW TO ADDRESS A CHRISTMAS CARD: Take a card firmly by the hand, shake once (only) and say "Pleased to meet you!"

If the card answers you when you address it (this is doubtful), say "my, you are a card, aren't you?"

HOW TO STUFF A TURKEY: Take fork firmly in right or left hand (depending on whether you are a rightist or a leftist) and stuff portion of turkey into mouth (first opening same).

HOW TO WRAP A PARCEL: Choose a parcel smaller than you are, and one you feel is not likely to fight back. With a tack hammer, tap it lightly, three or four times.

HOW TO TRIM A CHRISTMAS TREE: Borrow a pair of electric clippers from Les Stewart, but be careful not to take too much off the top, and leave the sides a little dark, please. (This does not apply to the modernistic white-sprayed trees. The best thing to do is, put them in the dark, and leave there).

HOW TO HAVE AN OLD-FASHIONED CHRISTMAS: One cube sugar. Dash of bitters. Water to dissolve. Ice cubes. Garnish with slice lemon, slice orange. Fill to brim with your favorite brand.

HOW TO FILL CHRISTMAS STOCKINGS: Roll stocking down to toe. Insert foot carefully. Roll stocking up to knee and then (aw, shucks, fellows I can't go on).

HOW TO BEHAVE UNDER THE MISTLETOE: Who wants to behave under the mistletoe?

HOW TO HAVE A WHITE CHRISTMAS: Look. If you have the Christmas spirit, any sort of weather should be all white by you.

HOW TO MAKE SHORTBREAD: Take a standard loaf, a sharp knife, and cut it as short as you wish.

HOW TO BE SURE THE CHRISTMAS TREE LIGHTS DON'T GO OUT: Keep the door locked.

HOW TO SHOP FOR CHRISTMAS: You don't shop for Christmas. All of a sudden, Christmas is here. You don't buy Christmas. It was given to you—and yours—one thousand nine hundred and fifty-three years ago. All you can shop for, is the tinsel. Christmas itself is either in your own heart—or not.

No one was hurt in the most serious of several traffic mishaps in the city Wednesday night when a car was turned on its side at Fort and Richmond Street.

Only medium damage was done to the car driven by David H. Carey, 2016 Romney.

Police said the car appeared to go out of control when the driver attempted a turn from Fort to Richmond at 11:30 p.m.

On Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5 at Liberal Headquarters, Government Street, a Christmas tree and special treats have been arranged for children of members of the Esquimalt-Saanich Federal Liberal Association. CRASH-DASH DRIVER LEFT PLATE BEHIND

A city youth who crashed into a parked car unobserved and then drove away must have been baffled when city police arrived promptly on his trail.

Herbert C. Wood, 651 Manchester, pleaded guilty in police court today to a charge of careless driving and another of failing to report an accident. He paid $35 on the first charge and $25 on the second.

Police disclosed that the crash-and-run driver had obligingly left one of his license plates at the scene of the accident.

Auto thieves scored twice in Victoria overnight.

W. Conlan, 20 Government Street, told police his 1950 brown Pontiac sedan was taken from in front of the Humboldt liquor store prior to 3 a.m.

A Cobble Hill visitor, Harry Webber, reported that his car, a green 1950 Chevrolet, was stolen while parked near the Legislative Buildings about 5:30 p.m.

Peeking into a Yates Street restaurant while driving past on November 9 proved expensive for Harry E. Liddle, 1239 Sunnyside.

In police court today he pleaded guilty to careless driving which led to hitting a parked car. That cost him $35. But he couldn't produce a driver's license either for investigating officers and had to pay out another $25 on a second charge.

A man who forgot to turn on his headlights while driving a short distance on a well-lit city street got into trouble that cost him $35 in police court today.

Turning from Quadra to Kings Road, David B. Christopher, 2521 Quadra, was in collision with another car, November 30. He pleaded guilty to a careless driving charge.

Parkville will be the site of Associated Chamber of Commerce of Vancouver Island's annual meeting next June. Parkville's invitation was accepted by ACCVI executive during a meeting at Nanaimo Tuesday afternoon.

Falling Lumber Missed Baby

Her baby missed death by an hour, said Mrs. Don Riehl as she surveyed spot where Miss Anne Butler was buried by lumber. Baby Riehl usually sleeps on spot where Miss Butler's hat rests. Other lumber piles are still close.

Lumber Topples, Woman Crushed On Spot Where Baby Had Its Nap

When a 20-foot high pile of lumber toppled, Miss Anne Butler, 48, of 619 Queens, was crushed and seriously hurt Wednesday evening.

The avalanche of one-by-ten-inch planks, stacked in a lumber yard adjoining her home, toppled on Miss Butler while she was collecting a bucket of chips in her yard for her apartment.

The lumber fell on the exact spot where a six-month-old child was taking a nap in its pram a short time earlier.

From her bed at Royal Jubilee

Christmas might find Miss Butler in hospital. Almost buried by a toppled lumber pile, the out-of-work domestic was gathering chips to warm her small apartment when trapped by falling planks. Nurse, Mrs. K. T. Gissinger, tends her in Jubilee.

B.C. Government Liaison Man Covers Three Departments

George H. Magwood, Robson, B.C., recently appointed liaison officer under Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers, will act in a liaison capacity between the lands, forests and mines departments.

Mr. Sommers, explaining the liaison officer's duties, said today he will do research work, handle inquiries, prepare reports for the minister and handle a myriad of other matters.

For example, the minister said, Mr. Magwood is now studying the Stevens & Kellogg management engineers' recommendations on the departments' administration.

"He is studying the recommendations, will determine which have been implemented and which have not, and then will make a report to me," explained the minister.

He said the post of assistant deputy lands minister has been abolished, and Mr. Magwood

Girls' Drill Team May March at CNE

The Victoria Girls' Drill Team may attend the Canadian National Exhibition in 1954.

Announcement was made Wednesday night by Geoffrey I. Edgelow, director of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau, that CNE officials have been inquiring into the cost of sending the girls to Toronto for a two-week performance.

Mr. Edgelow stated that the bureau was hoping that the cost, estimated in excess of $10,000, would be covered by the CNE.

Such a trip would be the first eastern tour for the drill team, and would be the first time that any group from Victoria had appeared at the exhibition.

He already has made several visits to the dam site.

Coast Ship Service Cut Spurs Protest

Island Urges Access Roads

Curtailment of ship and air services to west coast Vancouver Island communities will be protested to Canadian Pacific Steamships and federal department of transport by Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island.

Representations also will be made to the federal government urging financial assistance toward constructing West Coast access roads.

Meeting at Nanaimo Wednesday afternoon, under chairmanship of President F. W. Hawes, Victoria, ACCVI executive recorded strong protests against "inadequate steamship service furnished West Coast points by CPSS."

(Vancouver - Victoria - West Coast schedule recently was reduced to thrice monthly. Almost concurrently Vancouver-West Coast air service expansion was blocked by an Air Transport Board regulation.)

UNFIT FOR SERVICE

Chamber of Commerce delegates to the Nanaimo meeting also charged the CPSS steamship Princess of Alberni is "not a proper or fit vessel" for the West Coast service. The ship was stormbound on the West Coast for several days recently and also sustained minor damage from the sea's action.

Ten Island Chambers of Commerce were represented at Wednesday's meeting. Delegates were: Fred W. Hawes, George H. Wheaton, George L. Warren and Walter S. Miles, Victoria Chamber of Commerce; H. C. Stone, Duncan; Alan Calvert, Saanich and North Sidney; R. P. Weber, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Clay and John Sidaway, Shawnigan; J. M. Elliott and G. S. Oliver, Sooke-Jordan River; N. Schroeder, Port Alberni; H. Sharp, Tofino; J. Evans, Robert Mawhinney and H. E. Heath, Nanaimo; E. G. Luckhurst and A. L. Kirby, Alberni; H. V. Stafford, Sayward.

Professor Named To Aid Decision On Bettle Dam

Prof. R. M. Hardy, Dean of Engineering at the University of Alberta, has been named special consultant to acting water controller Arthur Paget for the final decision on damming of Bettle Lake by the B.C. Power Commission.

The commission's plans for the dam are now in the hands of the water controller.

A decision is expected early in the new year.

The commission must prove to the controller a sound dam can be constructed on the site. Rock tests, conducted by drilling procedure, have been going on for several months.

Prof. Hardy was a consulting engineer for the Alcan project in northern B.C.

He has field wide experience in the field of soil mechanics and earth structure, and served as consultant in this field for many industrial firms across Canada. The professor did post-graduate work at Harvard University.

He already has made several visits to the dam site.

Vote Drive Continues

Junior Chamber of Commerce "Get-Out-and-Vote" campaign was kept up to the minute in the civic election here today. "Jaycettes" distributed lapel badges to voters who had done their duty. Badges read: "I voted—have you?" Here Mrs. Barbara Stewart (right) pins sign on Mrs. F. H. Jackson as she leaves polling place. (Times photo.)

Canine Vote Out Early

An early arrival at the polling station shortly after it opened this morning was the dog Skipper. He walked in confidently, and immediately headed for section 18 (Shaw-Ster). Asked if he intended to vote for Punch, the dog who works for Times columnist Monte Roberts, Skipper said: "Wuff." (Times photo.)

Columbia Hydro Development Subject of New Joint Parley

A further conference on development of hydro-power on the Columbia River will be held at Boise, Idaho, January 13.

Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers said today.

The minister has just returned from a similar meeting in Seattle with the governors of Oregon, Idaho, Washington and Montana.

Mr. Sommers is chairman of the B.C. Columbia River basin development committee. Other members are Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, B.C. Power Commission chairman S. R. Weston, R. G. Anderson of the West Kootenay Power and Light Company, and Thomas Ingledew, a B.C. Electric vice-president.

The committee is studying the whole question of water storage for power purposes in the Columbia River basin as a result of a proposed dam at Libby, Montana. The dam would back up water into B.C.

The whole issue comes under the jurisdiction of the International Joint Commission. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton is chairman of the Canadian section.

He will be asked to meet the provincial committee next year. Mr. Sommers said reason for the meetings between the B.C. group and the U.S. governors is to work out problems at the lower level so a united policy can be presented to the IJC.

ASK The TIMES

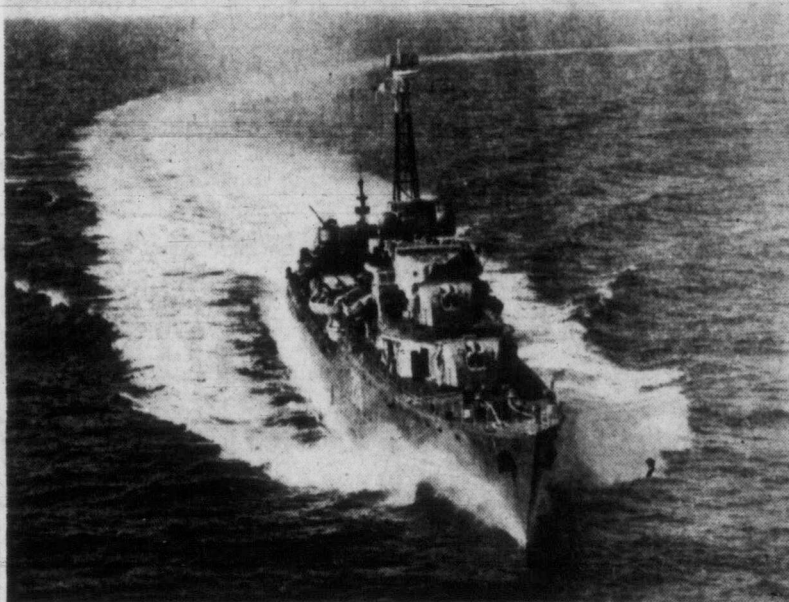

Q.—Will you please tell me who invented radar, and in what year?—Miss J. N.

A.—An authoritative volume, "What Radar Is and How It Works," makes it plain radar was a growth to which numerous science pioneers gave of their knowledge and efforts over a long period. The many hands, the book says, "included the skilled fingers of Hertz, Marconi, Tesla, Thomson, Braun, Edison, DeForest, and a host of others—Kennelly, Heaviside, Taylor, Kuve, Page, Zworykin, Wolff and other men famous for their contributions to the advance of radio as a science, an art and an industry."

Q.—Is Halifax as old a city as Quebec?—O. M. S.

A.—No. Halifax was founded as a settlement in 1749 and incorporated as a city in 1842. Quebec is the oldest city in Canada, according to the Encyclopedia of Canada. Founded by Champlain in 1608, it was incorporated as a city in 1832. It obtained its present charter in 1840.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Folks . . . Deck Your Gifts With Sprigs of Holly!

By PENNY SAVER

Lots of folks have their presents wrapped already . . . makes me feel kind of slow! However, I don't even begin to imagine that I'm the only one in Victoria that hasn't got my gifts wrapped. No, sir! So, this hint is for those people who have yet to do the job.

You may not be able to afford expensive gold and silver wrappings, but the plain, every-day white, red and green tissue can be brightened considerably with a little ingenuity. You can attach almost anything to the ribbon . . . cones, pine needles, glass balls, holly.

Holly is best of all. The only drawback is the sharp prickly leaves. And that's why I was overjoyed when I found some imitation holly in a store the other day . . . it had blunt edges!

The bright berries are just 10 cents a bunch and the glossy green leaves are 25 cents a bunch. It's cheaper to buy them separately like that and make your own decoration by winding the wires together. With one bunch of each, you can make a cluster for many a gift!

Of course, if you can't spare a few seconds to do the making, you can buy them ready-made. Clusters of berries and leaves cost 7 cents or 10 cents each. As I said before, it's more expensive this way!

The joy of imitation holly is that the receiver, if feminine, can wear the cluster in her hair or on her lapel after she's opened her gift.

Mamas are forever on the lookout for odds and ends to put in their darlings' stockings on Christmas eve. And what could be nicer than a child's signet ring . . . of sterling silver? And what could be a better price than $1? Hmmm? Variations of the ring include some with "sapphires," "rubies" and "diamonds" set in them . . . same price!

A salad tastes better if it's eaten from an individual salad bowl of highly-polished maple, which costs a mere 95 pennies. Of course if you're wanting something special and choose the ones with bright designs painted on them, you'll have to pay $1.15 for them. The designs include roses, cherries and dogwood.

A pair of puffy fur pom-poms . . . one on each end of a velvet cord cost $1.69. They make smart accessories for winter dresses! Fur is white or brown and velvet is in practically any color you'd want.

AS WE LIVE

Fathers Deprive Girls Of Normal Social Life

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

Parents sometimes forget that they are living in 1953, not in the era when they were boys and girls. That can make trouble for their children. A girl writes:

(Q) "My girl friend and I have a parent problem. We are 15 years old and can't go out on casual dates. My father will not let me talk to boys when they call me on the phone. Whenever I bring up the subject of boys, my father gives me a speech, ending up by saying, 'You're still too young.' I never get to go to record hops. Could you please give me some advice on this subject, which I think is kind of serious."

(A) I agree that your problem is "kind of serious." Girls of the present generation start to date before they are 15, and all the social life of teenage girls is centered around parties with boys. As matters stand, you are being cut out of all the fun your friends are having.

Even more serious, you are being deprived of the opportunity to learn to do things with boys and to feel at ease with them. When your father finally decides you are old enough to do some of the things your friends have been doing for years, you will be like a babe in arms in your lack of worldly wisdom and poise.

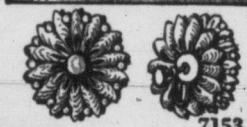

He may not realize it, but many of the girls who "get into trouble" or who win a bad reputation are girls who have been tilted down as you are. They are so unsophisticated that they make many mistakes, and try to make up for lost time by doing everything in extremes.

I am not going to advise you to try to talk to your father. You have already tried that and have gotten nowhere. It will take an outsider whose opinions your father respects to make any impression on him.

You must find that person and explain your problem. It may be a grandmother, an uncle or aunt, the family doctor, the dean of girls of your school, or your minister. Ask him or her to plead your cause for you.

As a special service to our readers, Dr. Hurlock has written a 64-page booklet, "You and Your Problems." For your copy send 15 cents in coin with a self-addressed stamped envelope to this newspaper.

If Santa Brings Black Lace Wear It Like 'Carmen'

Black lace, whether cast over pale flesh or nude silk, always weaves a web of allure.

If you don't believe men think so, says a Hollywood beauty specialist, just ask any sales-lady in lingerie who are the Christmas customers for those black lace lovelies.

Black lace fashions for small holiday dinners and parties and big balls, for TV at-homes and standby dress occasion have bowed back this winter to popular hand-claps and cries of "More! More!"

So, whether you wear it for the snares of lady-like allure or for sheer Kinsey-kind of come-on, make-up to black lace with a "Carmen's" flair.

That's the Hollywood expert talking. Calling your cues for this role, he suggests a gardenia skin—smooth, exquisite, creamy-white—and lips as red as over-ripe fruit.

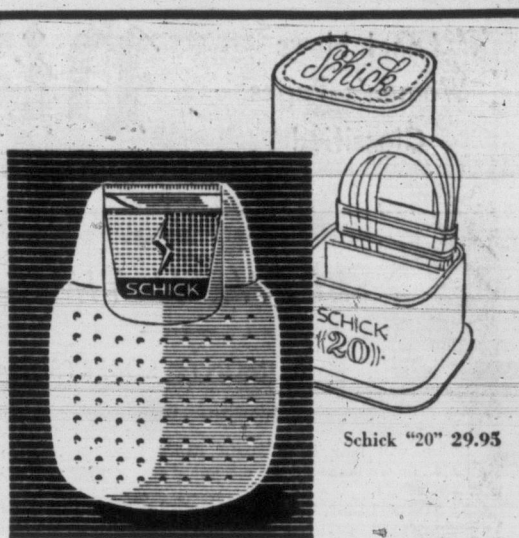

He says carry the same exquisite pallor of face and neck to your matching red-finger-tips. You can do that, he suggests, with a matching shade of make-up blender. Such an opaque liquid is easier to apply to neck, shoulders, arms and hands than pancake make-up or pan-stick, which he thinks is ideal for creating a gardenia-like face. Moreover, as he explains, the make-up blender used on other exposed skin won't rub off on or spot up the filmiest black lace, even if skin only plays a peek-a-boo from underneath it.

The Victorianes as they appeared in the Christmas program of Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon. Left to right, Mrs. Thelma Johns, Mrs. John Gough, accompanist; Mrs. Marjorie Goodwin, Mrs. Alice Hawes, Mrs. Gladys Gilje and Mrs. Peggy Moore; seated on floor, Mrs. Nell Gillespie.

Original Plays, Carols on Program

The sweet strains of "Deck the Halls With Boughs of Holly," as sung by the Victorianes, set the motif for a happy Christmas concert presented by Victoria Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel, Wednesday afternoon.

Dressed in jewel-toned moire taffeta gowns, styled in the Victorian mode and carrying truncheon baskets filled with holly and tied with bright satin ribbon bows, the sextette of attractive singers and their accompanist walked gracefully up the long aisle to the stage to sing Christmas carols for an appreciative audience which filled the ballroom. The Victorianes also sang a group of madrigals.

Rounding out a perfect program was presentation of an original play and two acts of "Victoria Regina," in which three of England's queens appeared on stage.

H. S. Hurn, director of school and community drama, was author of the effective one-act play, "By Name Elizabeth," which was directed by Thomas W. Mayne.

Dialogue represented a conversation between the two Elizabeths just following this year's Coronation Day. Rosalie Cheesman as Elizabeth II was a delightful picture and Elizabeth Knight as Elizabeth I looked as if she might have stepped directly out of the Elizabethan age when "Good Queen Bess" was England's Queen.

In the two acts of "Victoria Regina," Mrs. Lesley Allen capably portrayed Queen Victoria. She appeared with John Gray as John Brown in "In the Highlands" and with Mrs. E. S. Farr was chairwoman of this special Christmas program.

Shelagh Clarke, Anne Adamson and Tanis Monteith as ladies-in-waiting in "We Are Not Amused."

A New Light on LAUNDERING

"I wish to tell you how much I appreciated the way my linen has lasted under your laundering. I came here eight years ago. My linen was not new then. I am still using it. I think that speaks well for your 'New Method'."

This extract from an unsolicited letter, which we received the other day gave us the thought that perhaps many housewives have not fully realized the tremendous importance of good laundering in lengthening the life of their household linens.

To produce a sparkling white bundle of washing is one thing.

But to achieve this result without affecting in the slightest the strength of the items in the bundle is much more difficult and calls for careful and minute control of every stage in the washing process.

At New Method, we have behind us fifty years of accumulated experience in laundering problems successfully without affecting their strength lies in CONTROL of our washing formulas.

Through membership in the Canadian Research Institute of Launderers and Cleaners, New Method is able to measure minutely each factor necessary to produce a first-class bundle.

These Essential Factors Are:

1. Detergency
2. Whiteness Retention
3. Tensile Strength Loss

Detergency refers to the amount of soil removed. Whiteness Retention is the amount of soil removed but re-deposited (the "tell-tale grey" which the housewife finds so difficult to avoid).

Tensile Strength Loss refers to the percentage by which the original strength of the fabric is lowered in the washing process.

TEST BUNDLE FOR YOUR PROTECTION

Each month New Method receives a "test bundle" from the laboratories of the National Research Council in Ottawa.

This "test bundle" consists of two cotton swatches. One swatch has been evenly coated with a layer of soil similar in content to that found in items received for laundering from the home.

The amount of this soil on the swatch is minutely measured in the laboratory before we receive it. The second swatch is a plain piece of unsoiled cotton, the whiteness of which has been photographically recorded by an instrument called a "reflectorimeter."

In addition, the tensile strength or breaking point of each swatch has also been established prior to our receiving it.

We are then required to give these swatches twenty full launderings in our normal washing process. WHICH IS ROUGHLY EQUAL TO THE LAUNDERING AN ARTICLE WOULD RECEIVE DURING ONE YEAR'S USE.

On completion of the test, the swatches are returned to Ottawa and an analysis is made. This analysis, together with any comments thought necessary, is then forwarded to us.

Here is a Typical Report:

Detergency: Whiteness Retention 100% Tensile Strength Loss: Does not exceed 6%

In other words, we removed 97.2% of the imbedded soil. No soil was deposited on the second swatch! Taking the original strength of the swatches as 100%, it was still over 94% after one year's normal laundering!

HOME LAUNDERING CAN'T COMPARE

No laundering performed at home can possibly hope to achieve these results. Faulty use of household bleaches, for instance, will rapidly reduce the strength of household linens to the point where their replacement becomes necessary. And with the limited hot water supply available in the average home, it is impossible to achieve the same degree of soil removal.

Early this year, as an experiment, we purchased at a local store a sheet and pillow case, and sent them to the National Research Council to have their tensile strength measured. We then submitted them to two hundred full washes.

This was equivalent to the laundering they would receive in ten years of normal use!

They were then returned to Ottawa to be measured for strength loss. The laboratory report on file at our office indicates the strength loss to have been 34% on the sheet and 37% on the pillowcase. As the report says, "It will be seen from this data that even after 200 launderings the fabric of both the sheet and pillow case retains a relatively high strength."

In addition to the tests outlined above, New Method technicians make spot checks daily on every phase of our laundering process.

The careful preservation of the tensile strength of articles sent to us is jealously guarded. It is an unseen bonus which we believe each of our customers is entitled to expect. A bonus which through the years can save you a large sum of money.

Central Lutheran Church, Regina, was scene of a pretty and colorful wedding recently when Eileen Skundberg and William (Bill) Sherman exchanged vows and rings in an evening ceremony. Rev. R. A. Swedberg officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Skundberg, Regina, and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sherman, Uxaleet, V.I.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a strapless gown of Chantilly lace and net. The bolero featured a Peter Pan collar and lily point sleeves. Her finger-tip veil misted from a Juliet cap and was trimmed with lily of the valley. She carried a white Bible topped with gardenias and cascading baby chrysanthemums. She wore pearl earrings and her pearl and ruby ring was the gift of the groom.

Little Sharon Johnson, Lethbridge, two and one-half year old niece of the bride, was flower girl and Hilda Skundberg was her sister's bridesmaid. Constable Bob Harrison, Prince Albert, was best man. Welcome your friends at Yuletide by hanging a glittering felt Christmas tree on your front door. This delightfully different decoration is easy and inexpensive to make with 20 cover-your-own buttons, 1/4 yard green felt, 1/2 yard pink felt, some scraps of fabrics, various sequin shapes (crystal stars, pearl ropes, flowers), some cardboard and 4 feet of gold elastic thread. With a pinking shears cut a green felt tree, 22" high by 25" at the lowest spread. Cut a similar pink tree, 19" by 17 1/2", and a cardboard tree the same size. Sew green tree to cardboard, and pink tree to green tree. Simulate Christmas tree balls by covering buttons with scraps of colorful fabric and sewing them to the felt. Then sew sequin ornaments to the felt in a pretty pattern of your own. Slide gold elastic thread through button shanks, knotting at each button to secure. Cut out with pinking shears 3 1/2" by 2" felt letters to spell "Noel." Back these with cardboard and sew to tree stump. Tack to your front door or use adhesive picture hooks if you have a metal door.

Cranberry Ice

Two cups cranberries, 1 cup water, 1 cup apple juice or 1/2 cup orange juice, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Bring cranberries and water to a boil and boil for 5 minutes or until skins pop, stirring to prevent sticking. Put through a food mill or sieve to remove skins. Add fruit juice, sugar and salt and blend well. Pour into freezing tray and freeze until quite firm. Break into chunks and place in a bowl. Crush with a fork until mixture is a smooth mush. If mixture is allowed to melt, the "ice" will have coarse crystals. Quickly beat for a few seconds, immediately pour mixture back into freezing tray and allow to freeze until firm. Yield: 3 to 3 1/2 cups. This ice is perfect to serve with cold roast turkey in place of a side salad.

WHY GROW OLD?

Tummy Bulging Some? These Exercises Help

A protruding tummy is one of the most prevalent feminine figure faults. We often see this even in young girls and it is the usual thing in the average middle-aged woman. This not only ruins an otherwise good figure but it is a health hazard.

We need strong abdominal muscles to support our internal organs. When the muscles become lax the stomach and intestines slump. A strong natural muscular girdle is especially to be desired in woman because of pregnancy.

Each pregnancy stretches these muscles and reconditioning exercises should be taken after each child arrives, as soon as your doctor says you can exercise. However every woman needs strong abdominal muscles for health. Backache and fatigue and constipation can result from weak muscles, to say nothing of the cosmetic effect.

Some abdominal exercises are quite strenuous. If you have not been taking exercises you should begin with easier ones. Today I am going to give you two exercises outlining the consecutive stages of each exercise.

One: Lie on the floor on your back with your arms resting on the floor at your sides and your legs straight. Bend your right knee up close to your abdomen. Return it directly to the floor. Bend your right knee up close to your abdomen. Return it directly to the floor. Continue, alternating right and left.

After doing this for a week or 10 days, go on to the next stage. Again bend the right knee up close to the abdomen. This time straighten the leg toward the ceiling. Lower leg with a stiff knee. Do the same thing with the left leg and continue, alternating right and left. Do this for another 10 days.

Now comes the last stage of this exercise. Begin it whenever it does not seem a strain. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen. Straighten both legs toward the ceiling and lower the legs to the floor slowly, with stiff knees.

Two: Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor overhead. Raise the right arm and the right leg at the same time. Touch the fingers of the right hand to the right leg or ankle or toe, whichever you can do. Lower leg and arm simultaneously. Do the same thing with the left arm and leg. This exercise can become quite strenuous later on when you are able to do it like this; raise both arms and both legs at the same time, touch, and lower to the floor simultaneously. Do not try this latter at first.

If you would like to have my tested abdominal reducing and firming exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 2, "Abdominal Exercises," to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

BEANS

Whenever your ideas for a meal include beans as a main dish or ingredient, make sure of a result that will win praise from your family. Heinz chefs take no short cuts with their famous beans—they're baked until every golden-brown morsel is ready to burst with tenderness—and then steeped in spicy sauces. Heinz makes the beans, and the beans make the dish, no matter which of the five varieties you use—Heinz Beans with Pork, Beans in Tomato Sauce, Boston Style Beans, Beans with Sliced Wieners, or Red Kidney Beans with Pork—they're all oven-baked.

OAK BAY APPLAUDS REPAYMENT By PROUD RELIEF RECIPIENT

Social welfare in Oak Bay costs only $400 a month, Councillor James Maltby told the annual gathering of council and ratepayers Thursday night. Only 10 or 12 persons need municipal aid, he said.

The audience applauded the action of one former recipient of welfare who, Mr. Maltby said, is enjoying better circumstances and insists on refunding to the municipality all grants received.

Re-Elect J. W. Casey

During my term of office the Municipality has enjoyed the greatest building program since incorporation in 1906.

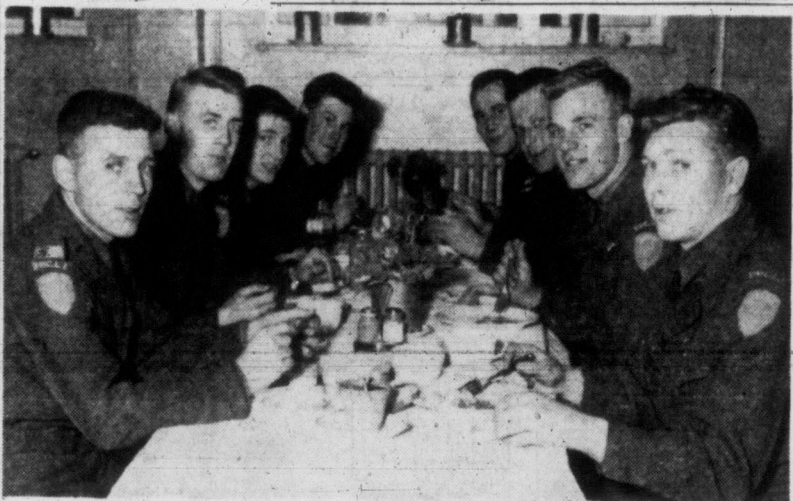

Under My Guidance

- (1) A drainage program was introduced which is producing excellent results where it is in operation. This program will be continued until all major problems are solved.
- (2) An extensive sewage program acceptable to, and approved by, the ratepayers is now going ahead and is progressing favorably. Over 1,300 house connections out of a total of 5,000 have already been completed to property lines.
- (3) A consulting engineer was entrusted to carry out a survey regarding improved distribution of water within the municipality. His recommendations are now being carried out progressively and are financed out of waterworks revenue.
- (4) The financial status of the municipality now ranks among the highest in the province.

Esquimalt High to Receive Trophy Friday

By DOROTHY NELSON
Times Esquimalt High School Reporter

For the third time in the six-year history of the trophy, Esquimalt High School won the Cecil Scott Memorial Shield with its 1952-53 school year book in competition with other B.C. high schools. Friday, at a special assembly, R. H. Reeve, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, will present the shield to the school at a special assembly.

Miss M. R. Conibear, sponsor of the school's journalism club, which is responsible for production of the annual "Memories," will accept the shield, acting for the absent ex-editor of the annual, Gloria Molofy.

This award is given annually in competition among high schools with fewer than 300 attending.

Thomas Ferris, secretary of the Victoria Allied Printing Trades Council, will present a cheque to the club for $25 to aid in production of this year's annual.

691 False Alarms in Oak Bay

Six hundred and ninety-one false alarms brought Oak Bay firemen sliding down the brass pole 691 times needlessly in 1953. Clr. George Gregory told the annual ratepayers' meeting Tuesday evening.

Joining other members of the council in reporting on their stewardship Clr. Gregory, chairman of the fire committee, said Oak Bay has the finest record in western Canada for low losses... $1,600 last year for a home value of $33,000,000. Part of the $1,600 was a car which caught fire in Victoria but drifted across the boundary.

Highlights of other reports: Police Commissioner R. B. Longridge "police activities have been normal with the exception of the holdup of the Bank of Commerce in April... no conclusive action has been possible because... there was no witness who could make positive identification."

School trustee J. de Bourcier (retiring)—words of praise for the school board, principals and teachers and a wish of success to trustee-elect W. Gelling.

Works committee chairman Clr. J. V. Johnson—"... busiest year in Oak Bay's history... $200,000 of work in all... almost $400,000 increase in building permits value over 1952."

Parks Committee and Town Planning Commission spokesmen, Clr. S. P. Birley—"... no more vacant lots in Oak Bay zoned for apartments... parks and recreation... Finance committee chairman and reeve-elect Clr. Fred Norris—"... this year biggest expenditure in Oak Bay history... budgeted for 97 per cent of taxes... 97.52 per cent collected. New properties on the tax roll... an additional $30,000 in taxes. Next year... it will not be an easy year."

'ALL RIGHT, I'M A WOMAN'

Disguise Fails, Canada Sends Antwerp Girl Home

MONTREAL (CP) — An 18-year-old girl is returning to Antwerp on the freighter Luksef after an unsuccessful attempt to enter the country as a seaman.

Captain Harold Hansen was told by the J. Brock Shipping Co., agents for the freighter, that he would have a woman passenger—the same person he had earlier brought to Montreal.

"I didn't have any woman passenger," he replied.

"That's what you think," a company official told him. "She wasn't a passenger; she was a member of your crew."

Jeanne Mutton, 18, signed on as a seaman in Antwerp as Alfred Soudemonte, saying he wanted to work passage to Canada.

When the ship arrived in Montreal immigration officials found the picture in his passport had been torn out. They became suspicious. Jeanne couldn't imitate the signature on the passport. When a physical examination was ordered Jeanne said: "All right, I'm a woman."

(BB PLUS) "SO THIS IS LOVE" (Capitol): Along about the mid-thirties there appeared on the screen a couple of "sneakers." Instead of being "just-get-bys" they proved to be smash hits. The first, "It Happened One Night," won Oscars for Claudette Colbert and Clark Gable, while the other, "One Night of Love," gave lovely operatic celebrity series star Grace Moore to millions of welcoming motion picture-goers. Although Miss Moore starred in several films after her signal triumph with Italian Tullio Carminati she was never to reach the same heights again that she attained in her maiden effort. But for those of us who remember her the once was sufficient to seal her in our hearts forever. When one delves in the past to remember the best shows one has seen, "One Night of Love" must be high on the list, for it had just about everything—a fine love story, a merry comedy, suspense and, above all, the glorious voice of Miss Moore singing excerpts from "Butterfly," "Carmen," La Traviata and more.

'Charley's Aunt,' Totem's Treat for Yuletide Holiday

"Charley's Aunt" probably the world's funniest and best known comedy will be the Totem Theatre's Christmas holiday presentation. The Brandon Thomas play that broke all London records with a non-stop, four-year run when it was produced there in 1892 has been translated into dozens of languages, played all over the world and has had four movie versions including the recent musical starring Ray Bolger. Totem Theatre's strongest cast will be featured for "Charley's Aunt" when it opens next Monday, but Victorians will play a prominent part in the production. Starring as Babbs, the college student who impersonates the "aunt" from Brazil will be Totem's co-producer and comedian Stuart Baker; Carol McCormack, star of Theatre Guild's recent production of

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1953

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) — Contact unusual personalities; seek their suggestions for sparking up your life, activities. Then be grateful for such excellent presence and good advice.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — You have your best chance in a long while to take your creative talents to those in position to push them to success. P.M., entertain them close to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Try to get off for the week-end if possible, for excellent new outlets that bring your best talent to the fore follow positive, definite, ex-

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — Replace that dramatic impulse that makes you want to make delightful but ineffective contact with a really cooperative attitude toward those close to you. Show them your affection unstintingly now!

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) —
This is your time to contact all you would like to be an integral part of your life for a long time to come. Come to definite understanding of where each fits into the picture. Satisfactory results follow.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept.
22) — Others have the power of the planets with them this benign day, so attach yourself to them. Be sure you make no caustic remarks, but rather show your respect, devotion to their best mental efforts. Keep cheerful.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN FRIDAY . . .
Friday's child is one of those unusually fortunate individuals who calls forth respect and affection from others with very little effort on his or her part. You would be in earliest possible years to teach continuously that one really appreciates only that which he or she has earned by "the sweat of his brow." Your child has an unusually good mind and can be successful in any professions that take the best from the past and streamline it for use in some modern manner, especially in all government work.

COURTENAY MAYOR, COUNCIL DEFY PUC 'DICTATORSHIP'

COURTENAY—Mayor Joe Hitchen deplored the "come across or else" tactics of the Public Utilities Commission in recommending that the city provide water to a Power House Road resident.

City council rejected the recommendation and will stand firm on its ruling of some time ago that no new outside water connections be made.

"This type of dictatorship is not good," Mayor Hitchen said.

Luciano Aide Shot Down By Fellow Thugs

NEW YORK (UP)—A de-ported henchman of vice racketeer Charles (Lucky) Luciano who sneaked back into the country was tracked down by members of the underworld and shot to death today.

The gangland slaying of Dominick (The Gap) Petrelli caught U.S. immigration and naturalization service officials by surprise. They thought Petrelli was living in his native Italy, to which he was deported in 1947.

An immediate investigation was begun to determine when and how the slippery gangster had returned to the United States.

Petrelli, 53, was killed by three bespectacled, well-dressed men who found him sipping brandy behind the bar at about 3.15 a.m. and saw the three walk in.

Each wore a topcoat and each had his right hand thrust in a pocket.

The mobster stiffened in terror, then leaped from a stool and fled into the kitchen. His assassins silently followed him. Then they fired five times, killing Petrelli on the spot.

The bartender said he ran into the kitchen after them, shouting "What are you guys doing?" He was slugged on the head with a pistol butt in reply, he said.

No Renewal of Korean War Within Year Seen in U.S.

By American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N.J.—Despite South Korean President Syngman Rhee's bellicose attitude in recent weeks, the weight of sentiment in America holds that the fighting will not start up again in Korea within the next year.

Out of every 100 persons questioned in the latest survey, 45 said they thought the fighting would not start up again, 34 said they thought it would, while 21 would not venture an opinion.

But if Rhee's South Korean army takes the initiative and resumes the fighting, this fact is crystal clear: majority opinion in this country would be substantially opposed to U.S. soldiers entering the fighting.

That is what interviewers for the American Institute of Public Opinion report after conducting personal interviews with a scientifically-selected cross-section of adults from coast to coast.

Dr. Rhee told a news conference in Seoul recently, after three days of talks with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa, "Let's fight; you cannot stop Communism by talking."

To determine America's views on the possibility of war breaking out again in Korea and, if the fighting does start up again, to what extent this country should aid the South Koreans, Institute interviewers asked two questions in today's survey. The first:

"Do you think fighting will or will not start up again in Korea within the next year?"

Fighting will start... 34%
Will not start... 45%
No opinion... 21%

Some war correspondents have reported that President Rhee believes that American public opinion would favor our Blind Choir and a musical variety show.

J. Courtney Haddock will address the gathering and a Christmas message will be delivered by Miss Dorothy Stark, executive director of the CNIB.

How to tell if your child is really strong

- 1 He seldom catches cold, even after exposure to dampness or chill.
- 2 He has good appetite and abundant energy.
- 3 His teeth are sound.
- 4 His bones are straight and strong.
- 5 He is not underweight for his age.
- 6 When he gets sick, he gets well quickly.

When children catch colds frequently or are underweight, lack appetite—try giving them Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's contains Vitamins A & D in oil with added minerals. It helps build strong bones, sound teeth, stamina, energy and maintain resistance.

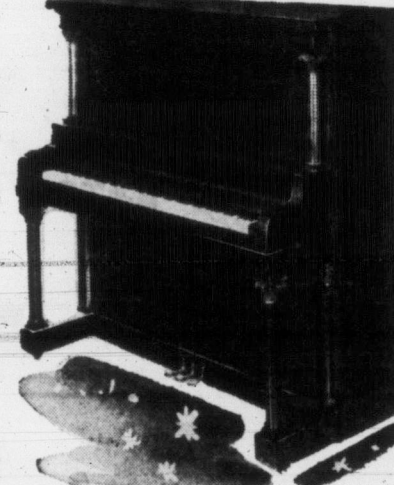

Four times easier to digest than plain cod liver oil—Scott's acts fast, tastes better. Get the big economical size at your druggist's today.

City Clerk, Solicitor in Debate With Candidate, Supporters

Tempers flared and hot words were tossed back and forth at the City Market this morning as the battle of the scrutineers blazed into action in Victoria's civic election. Here city solicitor Arthur Patton emphasizes

'BRUTES, BARBARIANS, CANNIBALS'

Briton Sobs Hate of Reds

HANNOVER, Germany (UP)—British Private Frank James William Kelly, 11, and emaciated after eight years in the dark jails of Soviet Russia, today condemned his captors as "brutes, barbarians, cannibals."

SELECTIONS

Kelly, who several times appeared near collapse, sobbed out from his wheel-chair the most bitter denunciation of Russian treatment of prisoners ever heard from a returned western captive of the Soviets.

Kelly was returned several weeks ago, but because of his condition he could not meet the press until now.

"Can you imagine what it is like to be interrogated 16 hours daily, kicked, punched, beaten, rabbit punched, fed through a tube with your mouth forced open with a clamp?" he said.

"They are brutes, barbarians, cannibals!" he cried.

Half facing Kelly as he addressed a press conference were British army doctors who feared he would collapse.

"It was hell. It was life with-out hope."

"I even cut my arm open—here look," he cried. He raised the sleeve of his new battledress to show the long, jagged, purple scar which testified to his attempt to escape Russian captivity through suicide.

"I was sentenced without a court," Kelly said. "I was innocent. It was a trumped-up charge. I was interrogated endlessly for 17 months."

"Can you imagine 17 months without hearing your own language," he sobbed.

Several times Kelly seemed on the point of collapse, but he refused to give up his deter-

Shouting Match Waged Between Smith, Officials

A threat to upset the civic election with court action was made today by the solicitor of mayoralty candidate J. Donald Smith.

It resulted from a ruling of Frank Hunter, returning officer, that 21 personal scrutineers of Mr. Smith would not be allowed to stand at the individual polling booths in the Cormorant Street Public Market polling station.

It resulted from a ruling of Frank Hunter, returning officer, that 21 personal scrutineers of Mr. Smith would not be allowed to stand at the individual polling booths in the Cormorant Street Public Market polling station.

At one point, Mr. Smith and his lawyer, Mr. Bate, sought to have Mr. Hunter arrested, as well as city solicitor Arthur Patton, who supported him in his ruling against the scrutineers.

They went to city prosecutor Alan Bigelow with the avowed intention of swearing out warrants against Mr. Hunter and Mr. Patton. But they left the prosecutor's office saying they had decided on a different course of action.

ANGRY PASSAGE

Mr. Bate's threats were made in two separate arguments with Mr. Hunter and Mr. Patton staged in the middle of the polling station. Mr. Bate shouted at angry words passed between him and Mr. Patton.

Toward noon, however, things had quietened down, and Mr. Smith said he didn't feel like commenting on possible legal action.

He did say, however: "We're prepared to issue a writ of mandamus but we can't do it because there's no Supreme Court judge here."

He said the writ would simply require the returning officer to permit his scrutineers in the polling station.

Mr. Smith had intended placing scrutineers at each of the 21 booths in the polling station where voters reported for their ballots. He apparently was informed Wednesday night he would not be allowed to use them, although he claimed he had served notice on election officials two months ago of his intention to have scrutineers.

RULING PROTESTED

Mr. Smith and Mr. Bate arrived at the polling station 15 minutes before opening time to protest the ruling and to seek to have it set aside.

On that occasion, they conducted their argument with City Solicitor Arthur Patton.

Mr. Patton said the Elections Act did not provide for scrutineers—that Mr. Smith could only have one agent on hand at the polling station and no more.

Mr. Bate said that was not the way he interpreted the act. The two lawyers quoted various sections of the act to one another. Finally, Mr. Bate turned to Mr. Smith and said:

IT'S 'LAMBS', NOT 'LIMBS'; CROSSWORD PRIZE GOES UP

For the sixth week Times crossworders failed to come up with a perfect solution for the weekly crossword contest. They had most trouble with the word for No. 3 down, "lambs," in answer to the definition for "Sturdy ones are best, of course." More than half the contestants used "limbs," but there were several thousand who had it right, although making mistakes in other answers.

Correct solution is on Page 27. With no winners this week the next puzzle, appearing tomorrow, will be worth $225 to a winner.
